'Smart Lab'

New school program wins praise

The recently created "Smart Lab 2000" at Romulus Middle School is not only exposing students to 15 different modern technologies today, it is creating marketable skills for youth at a very young age.

Instructor John Juriga, who has spent 25 years working as a shop teacher, feels totally transformed in his new role with the Smart Lab technologies.

"We are one of only 160 schools across the U.S. with this capability to offer classes for middle school through university graduate students. We were the first in Michigan to have the Smart Lab operational," Juriga said.

"Like adults, our students don't enjoy surprises in this 20-week tech program and thus the week by week program is explained to them in detail the first week of their studies," Juriga said.

Thirty students (working in pairs) take part in each class session, Juriga said, and six sessions are conducted daily. Each student is given a personal software disc and portfolio which can be taken to school.

"The amazing element of the class structure is that students can make mistakes in every level of the projects and still earn an A+," he said, "as class members learn through their mistakes also. They also are happy there is no homework."

The Smart Lab also can team up gifted students on more advanced projects, so that no time is lost and all level of students can work at the peak of their own efficiencies," Juriga said.

Since 15 different technology opportunities are available here, no one becomes bored for very long, he said.

In addition the creators of the software programs are constantly updating and refining the programs through information they receive from class instructors such as me, Juriga said.

Students can create miniature bridges testing stress levels and new car styles featuring either speed or fuel savings, Juriga said. The program even offers wind tunnels that allow students to study such things as wind pressure on vehicles or even the motion of a curve ball in simulated sports events.

"We have attracted over 300 visitors already this year, many of them from other states or countries such as Saudi Arabia and Thailand," he said. "In addition Eastern Michigan University plans to hold classes here this summer, since even their facilities lack such advanced year 2000 technology."

Art McPharlin, administrative assistant to Superintendent Dr. William Bedell, stressed this is a fulfillment of the school millage pack-

Blaze damages church, services move outside

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A fire of undetermined cause heavily damaged the Romulus Church of God of Prophecy building early Saturday, forcing the congregation to conduct Sunday worship services outdoors last week.

Pastor David Riggs said he discovered his church building in flames about 7:45 a.m. Saturday, as he was approaching the 45-50 year old building for Saturday preparation activities.

"The firemen were already fighting the fire," Riggs said. Later he witnessed part of the roof collapse.

Romulus Fire Chief William Greenslait reported the fire started in the church basement shortly before 6 a.m., but the cause remains undetermined at this time.

A kitchen and fellowship hall are located in the basement, Riggs said.

In addition to the heavy structural damage, Riggs said, the piano, organ, pews and other church equipment were destroyed or heavily damaged.

A Sunday School addition that was built in 1975 survived the blaze, but sustained heavy smoke damage, Riggs said.

Riggs and his 93-member congregation are busy looking for a temporary church site anywhere within about five miles of its current 7201 Kempa Street location.

"The temporary building we are seeking has to be able to hold 100-150 persons in a sanctuary style room and also have space for a number of other rooms for Sunday school classes and church offices," he said.

Riggs said his congregation has been offered some shared use facilities by other churches, but "with summer Vacation Bible School programs and other activities coming soon, we would rather rent a facility for the transition

Anti-gang plans unveiled

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Police Chief Bob Brown, noting that only total community action will help local police in their battle against crime, has announced plans to kick off two new programs this summer to fight youth violence and plans two others later in the year to curtail other criminal activities.

Brown recently informed Mayor Beverly McAnally that current Drug Awareness Resistance Education (DARE) officer John Leacher will be attending a free five-day, anti-gang training session sponsored by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms this June at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center in Glen Cove, Va.

While the week-long training session is offered free, the city of Romulus will have to pay for Leacher's transportation to Virginia and for his living expenses while there.

"DARE has already provided a solid platform for relationships between parents, children, the schools and this department," Brown said. "I would like to introduce city residents to a new program that instructs children to resist gang activity and involvement. The program is called Gang Resistance Education and Training (GREAT) and is aimed at the middle school age group. GREAT supplies the same positive contacts with emphasis on conflict resolution, cultural sensitivity, prejudice reduction, personal and community responsibility and goal setting," Brown said.

The chief said "built into the program is a summer activity and education component, which will blend very nicely into the city's Recreation Department-sponsored program for children."

If the summer program cannot be put on line this summer, we will add it next summer, Brown said.

The second program will be a criminal penalty diversion program that will include Youth Officer Rosemary Cooper, a 16-week program of counseling, group therapy and mentoring by local adult volunteers.

Cooper explained that certain youth offenders, who are apprehended for non-violent and non-repetitive violations,

Aide's pay increase debated

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A past salary hike for Betsy Krampitz, administrative aide to Mayor Beverly McAnally, raised some questions from Councilmen Randy Gear and Jimmie Raspberry on Monday night during the 1994-95 budget debate.

Both Gear and Raspberry said they had no objections to Krampitz's raised pay, but said they felt the deputy city clerk and deputy treasurer deserved the same treatment.

Raspberry pressed McAnally as to the reasons for the salary hike for Krampitz.

McAnally said Krampitz's role was changed this past year and she took on much more responsibility.

"In addition she surrendered 17 personal days with her change in job classification," the mayor said.

All agreed Krampitz does a quality job coordinating activities in McAnally's office and filling in for the mayor when she is out of the office.

Councilman Ellis Pennington stated "when the mayor is out, Betsy steps up and fills in magnificently. In fact we get as much done when the mayor is in the office or when Betsy is filling in."

McAnally broke into laughter, but countered "I don't know about that!"

Raspberry continued to press the values of Deputy City Clerk Pam Kersey and Deputy Treasurer Carolyn Smith, citing the fact they often fill in for their bosses, but have not gotten the $4,000-$5,000 raise that Krampitz has.

"I don't understand it Pete (Bergeron), the council is willing to approve a quarter of a million dollars for lawyers, but won't give these valued deputies peanuts," Raspberry complained.

Bergeron quipped "Jimmie, I agree. I didn't vote for the last lawyers' budget resolution."

"Will they (the two office deputies) also be willing to give up 17 personal days?" the mayor questioned.

Raspberry continued "I'm not asking you to take a dime away from Betsy, just be fair with the others."

McAnally stated bluntly "I don't apologize in any way for Betsy's raise, she has earned it with her quality work and her skills of confidentiality. If you want to give the others raises that is up to you."

The debate over the salary hikes will continue at the May 2 meeting.

In addition Bergeron has asked by Police Chief Bob Brown and Department of Public Works Director James Panos be in attendance to answer questions about their budget requests for the coming year.

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Councilman's daughter dies

Brenda Raspberry, 51, daughter of veteran City Councilman Jimmie Raspberry, died April 18 at the University Hospitals in Ann Arbor.

Ms. Raspberry, who suffered from kidney problems for many years, died of a heart ailment, her father revealed.

Raspberry praised the care his daughter received the weekend prior to her death from members of the Community Emergency Medical Services unit. "They were punctual and professional and if it were possible to save her life, they would have accomplished it."

Funeral services were conducted at the Penn Funeral Home and interment was in Romulus Cemetery.

A memorial resolution for the Raspberry family was approved by members of the City Council.

Senior rummage sale is planned

The Romulus Senior Club No. 1 has been granted a no-fee permit for a semi-annual rummage sale. The sale is slated from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. May 17 inside the senior center on Bibbins Avenue.

Romulus student on dean's list

Mark Hoinka of Romulus has been placed on the dean's list for the past semester at GMI Engineering and Management Institute of Flint.

Those on the dean's list at GMI must attain a grade of 92 or higher, with no course grade lower than 85.

As a cooperative education student, Hoinka is employed by GM Mid-Size Car Division in Warren.

Romulus student to attend institute

Roy Hartford Jr. of Romulus has been accepted at ITT Technical Institute of Troy.

The 72-week program in Computer-Aided Drafting Technology will prepare him for an entry level position in the Drafting/CAD field. After completing the study, he will be entitled to assistance from the ITT Technical Institute placement office in securing a job in his chosen field.

will be considered eligible for this special program.

"I have found it doesn't do any good to just work with the youth in these cases," Cooper said, "we need to impact the whole family." she said, "if need be we will file charges also against parents."

In the past, Cooper said, "we have fined parents from $75 to $300 for not overseeing their children properly and have assigned both to counseling."

In just the past 10 days, I have had 8-10 youth, who could fit into this program, Cooper said, and it is refreshing to know that we are getting new resources to work with on these community problems.

Brown said while there have been limited numbers of adult male volunteers for the mentoring program in the past, new Romulus Help Center coordinator Karen Paciero has been busy trying to attract the volunteer fire fighters to serve as mentors (role models for troubled pre-teens and teenagers.)

Brown said, "I have contacted Pastor Reginald Williams of the Bethany Apostolic Faith Church to assist in recruiting other pastors and lay persons to assist as mentors."

"We are trying to convince community leaders that it will take community action to stem any growth in gangs or youth violence. The message seems to be reaching some key community ears before these problems escalate as they have in nearby communities," the police chief said.

Brown later plans to outline a program with 34th District Court Chief Judge Felix Rogalle.

Shotgun blast

Botched holdup effort led to airport visitor's death

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

An accused "stone faced" gunman and his alleged partner, who are charged with killing a Metro Airport visitor with a single shotgun blast to the head the day before Easter, face a pre-trial court session on May 4 at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice.

Murder and robbery charges were bound over last Wednesday by 34th District Court Judge William Szlinis following a day-long hearing.

The preliminary hearing had been slated for April 13 but was adjourned quickly when Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Curtis Smith revealed neither defendant had an attorney present.

The pair include Charles Douglas Scott, 33, of Detroit, the accused gunman in the killing of Elwin A. Lillie, 54, of Ewart, and Isaac Collier Jr., 26, also of Detroit, a co-murder defendant, who also is accused of carjacking an Inkster woman's car after the murder.

Smith called 10 witnesses in the morning and afternoon sessions last Wednesday, including several eyewitnesses

Did you know them prior to today? Scott's lawyer Lawrence Johnson asked. No, I didn't know them then and I don't know them now. I just felt sorry for them.

- Dean Patten

to the shooting incident and one of the investigating officers, Detective Sgt. Mike Ondejko.

The first witness called was Dominic Triola of Detroit, who admitted that he loaned his black 1987 Escort to Collier, as he has done a number of times before, he said. The car was the vehicle the pair were allegedly sitting in when Lillie was killed in the parking lot of the McDonald's Restaurant on Middlebelt Road in Romulus on April 2 between 1 and 2 p.m.

Several persons, who were in the McDonald's parking lot at the time were then called and related they saw the two defendants in and around the victim's car after the shooting.

One witness, Yolanda Pezzat, testified she was seated in her car with her 12-year-old son, Benjamin, when she heard a "loud pop" and saw a black man stuff a large gun into his pants and flee the area with his alleged accomplice.

From where she was sitting, Pezzat said, she was able to see the blood splattered windshield of Lillie's car and viewed Scott's face close up.

Pezzat said she was able to pick Scott's "stone face" out of a photo line up a few days later at police headquarters.

A third witness, Dean Patten, said he noticed the two men trotting back and forth from the victim's car to their stalled Escort, as he first arrived in the parking lot.

Patten said the pair tried to push Lillie's Buick away from their get-away car. When that failed, he said, they filled their pockets with items from their car and fled.

He testified he saw Scott with a gun, which he claimed the defendant tried to hide with his dark trench coat. While he said he never actually heard the gunshot, he did see Scott place the gun through Lillie's open window apparently in an attempt to see if the victim was dead.

Patten said he got a good close up view of Scott before he fled. When questioned about his eyesight, Patten said he has "20-20 vision and I know because I had my eyes examined on Sunday after I had dirt blow into one of my eyes."

On cross examination he was asked if he had talked to the victim's family in court prior to the hearing on Wednesday. Patten said, "Yes I was expressing my condolences to them over their loss."

"Did you know them prior to today?" Scott's lawyer Lawrence Johnson asked. "No, I didn't know them then and I don't know them now. I just felt sorry for them," Patten said.

Patten also told the court he is currently unemployed and said he never worked as a police officer, auxiliary officer or security guard in the past.

Another witness, Nancy Vojakovic, told the court that she thought she heard a car back-firing and then saw "an older gentleman's car hit the McDonald's building. The victim's head then hit the windshield and blood splattered all over the glass."

She testified she saw two black men run past her van and claimed Scott looked directly at her as he passed. Because of that view, Vojakovic said, she was able to pick Scott's photo out of a lineup.

Smith then called Cornelia Ford to the stand and she testified she was nearby at a gas station, when, "I was approached by a gentleman, who grabbed my arm and demanded 'give me your keys or I'll hurt you'."

Ford admitted screaming, but surrendered the keys. She claimed Collier allowed her to take her purse out of the car and then asked her which key would start it.

Judge denies cars are leased by court

Romulus 34th District Chief Judge Felix Rogalle totally denied last Thursday that the three district judges have leased vehicles in the past two years.

Rogalle speaking before the District Control Unit of the 34th District Court said, "no leasing has occurred, not for one minute, no matter what it has said in the area press in the past year."

Rogalle said the judges now are given an annual $5,100 car expense allowance (which was based on the leased auto plan) which after taxes accounts out to about $341 a month.

Other trip expenses, such as food and lodging, are repaid by vouchers and are not covered by this car allowance figure, he said.

New court administrator Michael Ramsey said that the car allowance figure will be reduced to $3,300 in the new budget.

Several DCU members and press representatives who attend the sessions, reminded Rogalle that the leasing information came from the court staff while Probation Chief Carol Bowman was serving as the acting administrator.

The DCU members also debated future voting procedures as Romulus Finance Director Donavan McGuire said he felt Mayor Beverly McAnally was of the opinion that the voting count should be based on percentage of use, which he assumed with be similar to a corporate vote.

"I can't support that. Every municipality deserves one equal vote," said Van Buren Township Supervisor David Jakokes.

McGuire was asked to confer with McAnally and return with her views at the DCU meeting slated for 11 a.m. May 12.

Jakokes also asked the unit members to study his draft of a court agreement, so that the court can operate other than with a handshake.

In a separate issue, Ramsey asked municipalities to allow him to do the bulk of the bookwork on violation bureau fines.

"The way it is done now, with each violations bureau collecting the fines and costs and having checks mailed to us and then our returning a similar check to the municipal office creates massive extra work for the 34th District Court. I'd rather take on the bulk of the work here and simplify the process," Ramsey said.

Ramsey was asked to put together his concept on how the violations costs should be handled and send a copy of his plan to DCU members.

Romulus Treasurer James Napiorkowski also was asked to bring original bonding reports to the next meeting stating how the building is to be controlled after the bond issue runs out.

Jakokes and others said they wanted to know if "we will be paying rent or whether we will partners in operating the court."

cate," Riggs said.

"If we can't make arrangements by then, I guess we may be holding services in our parking lot again this Sunday weather permitting."

Persons wishing to offer Riggs and his congregation any assistance can contact him by calling 291-1031.

Riggs said he will have to check insurance replacement figures and current city zoning codes, before the congregation decides if it will rebuild on site.

"Zoning laws have changed quite a bit since this building was constructed nearly half a century ago," he concluded.

3 speak out for millage

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Three private citizens urged Romulus voters Monday night to support the June environmental protection millage and castigated recent newspaper advertisements by the Environmental Disposal Services and its citizen support group.

R.P. Lilly, a leading opponent of the planned $6.1 million deep injection well and member of anti-well citizens group Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP), complained about a letter printed in the local media by Dolores Witzgall, head of the pro-well group Voice for Taxpayers for Efficient Spending (VOTES).

Lilly, who said he lives within two miles of the planned hazardous/non hazardous liquid well site and pays Romulus real estate taxes, blasted Witzgall's claim that he doesn't live in Romulus and thus shouldn't be taken seriously in the well debate.

He also complained that Witzgall wrote in her letter that she "feels very strongly about the fact that such a highly controversial issue for the city of Romulus is being debated by a New Boston resident and a Canadian citizen, neither of whom are able to vote here."

The letter was referring to Lilly and Verlie Wilhide, Romulus homeowners.

"We are both taxpayers here. Neither Douglas Wicklund (EDS president) or Vince Schager (EDS operations manager) live in Romulus either, but VOTES has no objections to them speaking or writing full page ads in local newspapers," Lilly said.

Ramon Underwood of Romulus also urged those knowledgeable of the deep injection well issue to "educate others so they can vote in support of the environmental defense millage."

He said the millage will cost residents about $30 to $35 and will help empower the city to fight all types of pollution problems not only the EDS well.

Underwood said it would also help the city battle old polluted dumps and airport noise problems.

Bobbie Underwood declared, "we don't know what tomorrow will bring. Give the city a chance to fight for a healthier environment here."

Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks thanked the speakers for their support of the city millage effort.

"We received the same letter as you (Lilly) did. And they (VOTES) like to talk about small majorities. I'd like them to remember that it was only a small majority (one vote by the City Council) that approved their resolution in 1990," Banks said.

Mayor Beverly McAnally drew heavy applause when she explained that the city has spent considerable money in the past to fight dumps.

"It's funny what some people stand for. Despite some recent offers for settlement (out of court), we are fighting this issue because we feel it is important that all are treated equally under the law. We don't think that is a foolish principle."

The Romulus School District also hopes to offer an after school computer club in the near future and also plans to develop programs that can be operated in conjunction with the city-sponsored Recreation Department, McPharlin said.

Middle School Principal Andrea Williams revealed the study program is one of the most popular electives offered today and remains on target with local industries needs for training.

"Industrial representatives are thrilled that it stresses teamwork between students and learning critical thinking skills," Williams concluded.

"The Smart Lab allows us to change how teachers teach and how students learn," McPharlin said.

Officer succumbs to battle with cancer

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Tina Bertschinger will be remembered by her co-workers at the Westland Police Department as a fighter.

Miss Bertschinger, 29, lost her battle with cancer early Sunday morning at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor after a one-year, three-day battle with the disease.

"She has made an impression on everyone with the fight against her illness. She had a lot of determination. She'll be remembered for the fight she put up," Westland Police Chief Emery Price said. "... and the smile on her face," Westland police Sgt. Peter Brokas added.

Miss Bertschinger was rushed to the hospital by ambulance late Friday afternoon after suffering several seizures. The last one at 2 a.m.

Sunday was fatal.

"She had three seizures at home and two more in emergency and one Sunday morning when her heart stopped," her mother Rita Bertschinger said.

Through her battle, Miss Bertschinger had undergone open heart surgery for cancer in her heart, a heart transplant to replace the diseased organ and brain surgery to remove a tumor. She suffered two strokes and was being treated with radiation for a brain lesion when she became weak two weeks ago and eventually began having seizures, Bertschinger said.

"She was undergoing radiation and was getting ready to start again, but she never got that far," Bertschinger said.

Bertschinger added that her daughter's dream of becoming a police officer was granted when she was inducted into the Westland Police Department.

ment. She only worked three months due to her illness, but Bertschinger said, "It was probably the happiest time of her whole life."

"This is what she lived for - to be a police officer," Bertschinger said.

Miss Bertschinger, a lifetime Westland resident, was sworn into the Westland Police Department on Dec. 10, 1992. She became sick and following her recovery from surgeries, returned from October 1993 through December 1993 when she fell ill again.

The family is accepting donations for a special fund to support a K-9 police dog unit in Westland. Contributions can be sent in Miss Bertschinger's name to her sister, Kathy Rehm, 34921 Parkdale, Livonia, 48150.

"My daughter loved animals. The K-9 unit was something she was pushing for as a Westland officer, so we thought we'd take on her project," Bertschinger said.

Services were at the John M. Santieu and Son Funeral Home. Internment was at Cadillac Memorial Gardens.

Widow awarded $10.4 million

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

A local woman's battle to make several companies accountable for the loss of her husband and six children is finally over.

Debra Dell'Orco, of Canton Township, received $10.4 million as compensation from the manufacturer of the Christmas tree lights responsible for changing the way she would feel about Christmas forever.

The blaze started Dec. 22, 1990, when the family Christmas tree fell to the ground, causing a fire that quickly spread throughout the room. A couch, located in the couple's living room, reportedly fueled the fire and spread

I did it so they could get a good education and start in life. Those are things my husband would have done for them.

- Debra Dell'Orco
Canton resident

the toxic smoke that ultimately killed seven of the 11 family members.

Today, Dell'Orco spends her days helping her three surviving children deal with the accident and campaigning to establish a consumer hotline regarding Christmas lights.

"Consumers should educate themselves on Christmas tree lights - the way they look, their temperature and the wiring," she said. "These things need to be looked at. Just because it has a UL label does not mean the lights have been tested."

A total of five companies were named in the lawsuit including: the light manufacturer, Gilbert Manufacturing Co.; the distributor, J. Hofert

Co.; Underwriters Laboratories Inc., the consumer safety testing agency whose seal appeared on the box of lights; Cornwell Pool & Patio, Inc., who sold the lights; and Peoploungers Inc., who manufactured the Dell'Orco's couch.

Dell'Orco began the suit in 1992 to protect the future of her children and to hold the companies accountable for their actions, she said.

"I did it so they could get a good education and start in life," said Dell'Orco. "Those are things my husband would have done for them."

Dell'Orco faced representatives of each company for months as the case proceeded through the Wayne County Circuit Court, never receiving one word of solace for the loved ones she lost, she said. The fire claimed her husband Martin, 38, and their children Bonnie, 11; Sara, 9; Katie, 8; twins Michael and Megan, 5; and Robert, 4.

Dell'Orco hopes to begin a new chapter in her life following the settlement, beginning with the impending marriage of her daughter, Kelly.

"This is a happy thing," she sighed, "a positive thing."

A close knit-family, the mother and two surviving sons plan to be actively involved in the wedding preparation plans.

Boyfriend charged in death

A 34-year-old Taylor man was arraigned on charges of first-degree murder last week after Westland police arrested him April 18 in connection with the strangulation of his 30-year-old girlfriend whose body was found inside a 55-gallon drum in the bed of the defendant's pickup truck, Taylor police Commander Stan Cybert said.

Bret Thomas Greenleaf is being held without bond pending a preliminary examination in Taylor 23rd District Court before Judge Anthony Nicita. Greenleaf was arraigned following his recovery from a prescription drug overdose which he took sometime Monday morning after the alleged murder, Cybert said.

Police have identified the victim's body as that of Tammy Lynn Davis, who was believed to have lived in Taylor with the accused killer on the 7100 block of Wilkie Street, Cybert said.

Westland police arrested Greenleaf at a friend's home located on the 34000 block of Caseville Court around 10:45 a.m. after Taylor police alerted area police departments to a possible homicide, Cybert said.

Taylor police were informed of the possible homicide by a concrete business owner in Southgate who said his Taylor employee telephoned him around 6 a.m. asking if he could pick up his check because he had just killed his girlfriend and needed to leave town, Cybert said.

"It sounds like he made a call to the business owner after a while and drove to Westland," Cybert said.

After investigating near the Wilkie Street home and around the Southgate business, Taylor police were called by Westland police and informed that a suspect had just been arrested.

Westland police located the victim's body outside the Caseville Court address, after a friend of Greenleaf called police to inform them the alleged perpetrator came to his home and notified him that he had an argument with the woman around 4:30 a.m. and he strangled her to death, Cybert said.

Local optician offers hints for viewing solar eclipse

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

Sightseeing has never been as dangerous as it will be at 1:12 p.m. May 10.

Without the proper precautions, area residents attempting to catch a glimpse of the annular eclipse saros cycle 128 could receive permanent damage to the retinas of their eyes said Dr. Tom Cassidy, optician at the Vision Center of Canton Township. Looking directly at the sun allows invisible rays to painlessly burn the retina causing solar retinopathy.

"After an eclipse in 1970, data showed 145 people received burns to the retina," said Cassidy. "Sixty percent looked directly at the sun while 40-percent used some type of sunglasses."

Annular eclipses occur when the moon is aligned in front of the sun at a distance from earth too great to completely cover the rays of the sun. The result is a bright ring of sunlight surrounding the dark disc of the moon.

Cassidy recommends that people do not attempt to view the eclipse of the sun through smoked glass, sunglasses, photographic film, welder's goggles or photographic filters. "All are unsafe," he said, "and viewing an eclipse directly through binoculars or a telescope is even worse, as they magnify and intensify the sun's rays."

The American Optometric Association has devised a protective sunscope for the event made from an oblong box, white paper, aluminum foil and tape.

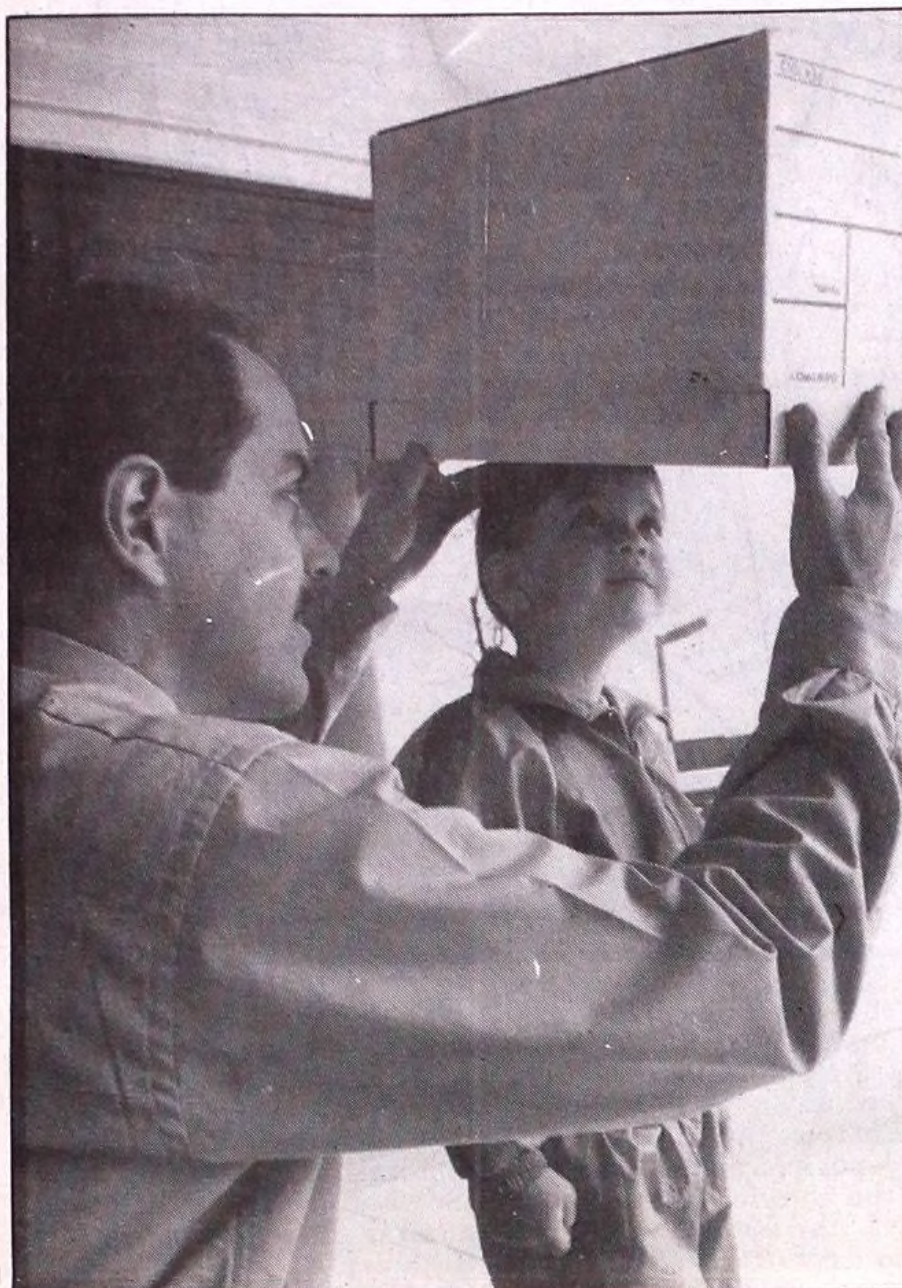

"It only takes about 15 minutes to make," said Cassidy, "and if I can make it, anyone can do it."

People are instructed to fasten a piece of white paper over one of the inside box ends. On the opposite end, a 1-inch hole should be cut and covered with a piece of aluminum foil. Make a pinhole in the center of the foil. To finish the sunscope, cut a hole somewhat larger than your head in the bottom of the box, so that the box can slip easily over the head. Make sure all light leaks are sealed with black tape or paper.

To use the sunscope for viewing, Cassidy said you must stand with your back to the sun, the box over your head, and look at the image projected through the pinhole onto the white paper.

The sunscope, proven to be safe and effective, is used by many college or university astronomy departments, astronomy clubs, planetariums and science museums said the optician.

Cassidy has informed local businesses, schools and residents about the eclipse and the dangers of viewing it without the proper equipment. Anyone having questions about the sunscope is encouraged to contact the Canton Vision Center on Ford Road at 981-2700.

Canton Township optician Dr. Tom Cassidy demonstrates his home-made safety viewer used to protect the eye when viewing the solar eclipse predicted for next month. Andrew Cassidy is a willing apprentice in his dad's efforts to prevent permanent eye damage to those viewing the heavenly show. ANP photo by Ken Garner

COOKING SCHOOL ?...
...THAT WAY!

The first U.S. cooking school was opened by Juliet Corson of New York City in 1876.

Opinion

A threat to all

For the past two weeks, members of the Inkster police department have stood accused of an unprovoked assault and brutal beating of a man taken into custody.

The officers were innocent of the charges.

But, until a witness came forward, and admitted that the beating had been suffered at her hand, not through any action of any police officer, there were many in the city and throughout the community who believed, without a doubt, that this man had suffered the injustice and insult which he claimed.

Civic activists and civil rights supporters went so far as to demand the resignation of the chief of police and picket the department headquarters. There were outcries and accusations at the city council meetings and the mayor was subjected to his share of criticism for his refusal to take immediate punitive action based on the man's unproven allegations.

In short, the very men charged with the protection of the rights of others were stripped of theirs and tried and convicted before the first evidence was heard in the court.

That seems a reflection of the poor light in which all law officers were cast with the beating of motorist Rodney King in California. From that incident, the very perception of law enforcement officers has suffered and each of them lives with the doubt cast upon their reputation and their credibility by the horrors witnessed by millions who saw the videotaped attack on King.

But, we all need to exercise caution in using this incident as a benchmark for measuring the believability of police officers or suspects. Our judicial system provides that each of us be considered and treated as innocent until proven guilty of any crime.

That is a premise, it seems, buried too deeply and forgotten too easily in our society today, where we all witnessed the actions of the police in the King incident.

But it is a basic tenet of our system—and our system is unquestionably the finest in the world. And it is the finest because it is based on those principles and allows us the freedoms which we have begun to take for granted and to abuse.

Those who would damage that system, or attempt to take advantage of any flaws in it, damage each of us who live according to the rules prescribed in our constitution. Any insult to the integrity of that system is shared, whether we realize it or not, by each of it. Our system is only as strong as our respect and belief in it, and our dedication to protecting the integrity built into it.

We need to respect and protect the principles on which it was founded as we would fight to protect our reputation and name if we were the accused. To damage the system, no matter how little, is an erosion and violation we all suffer.

A worthy effort

At a point in history where random acts of violence are more commonplace than they are unexpected, it is refreshing to learn that some individuals in the community are setting aside a week to carry out Random Acts of Kindness.

The week, designed for this worthy endeavor, is April 23 through May 1.

We learned from area residents that the idea evolved from a television talk show and has been adopted by many groups dedicated to ending the violence that permeates our society.

Participants will be wearing purple ribbons to indicate that they respect life and are opposed to violence in our neighborhoods, workplaces and in the community. Even without a purple ribbon, those observing Random Acts of Kindness Week should be easily identified by their deeds.

Be on guard, during the days between April 23 and May 1, individuals may pay you an unsolicited compliment, pick up the tab on your coffee break, present you with a bouquet of flowers, hold the door open for you, bring in a box of doughnuts for the office staff or give you a parking space in a crowded lot.

Hopefully, if we are the recipients of one of these random acts of kindness, we will be prompted to, not only convey our thanks, but be inspired to reply in kind.

If so, who knows how many acts of kindness could result. Could we hope that they might exceed the random acts of violence with which we are all too familiar?

Driver is 'damn mad'

To the editor:

I'm damn good and mad. I'm sick of city and county road patching crews throwing loose shovel-fuls of hot asphalt on roads, not only leaving smaller lumps to cover big holes (still bumpy roads - not properly fixed) but really mad at spending up to several hours nearly every day to have the cleanest 15-year-old car on the road.

What for? They use me and thousands of other drivers to pack down the asphalt. Good for the city and county, bad for all but the junkiest cars. I've had it (hot asphalt) regularly splashed on my bumpers, wheel wells, hub caps, and high up on the sides. I've had it on the windows and not just the windshield. Once the roof.

What would somebody think with a new 1994 light-colored car? It's hard - and sometimes impossible to clean off.

If they can't be held liable for damages, they should at least have the lane(s) blocked off, roll and pack down the asphalt properly.

They can take a better look next time they might think I have been waving to them. Look closer, I only use just one finger.

Representative announces end of term

To the editor:

When I was a candidate for State Representative in 1992, I was asked my opinion about term limitations for state representatives.

At that time, I stated that I opposed term limitations, however, if the voters wanted term limitations it was my opinion that 12 years not six years should be the limitation for state representatives.

I developed my opinion in support of a 12-year limit by comparing my own experiences with those of former State Representative Tom Brown. After 12 outstanding years in Lansing, Representative Brown chose not to run for re-election. When I reviewed what I had accomplished in my first six years as a representative, I felt in 1992, and I still feel, that a representative does not really have much influence in Lansing until after five or six years.

After expressing that opin-

ion in 1992, and even though under the term limitations amendment I could continue to serve through 1998, I made a personal decision that if voters approved the term limitations ballot proposal, I would not be a candidate for state representative after serving 12 years.

I hope that my action will encourage the writing of a new ballot proposal that will give the voters an opportunity to change the term limits on state representatives from six years to 12 years. This would bring the term limitation in line with the limit of 12 years that are placed on U.S. Senators.

Some of my accomplishments in Lansing include:

- 1) A healthier Michigan through my sponsorship of the Indoor Clean-air Act, my work on tougher drunk driver laws, and prescription benefits for poor senior citizens;
- 2) Cutting the state bureaucracy by sponsoring laws that allow double-bunking in county jails and giving control of local jails to local police departments;
- 3) My successful fight to keep a state prison out of Westland;
- 4) My sponsorship of the Crime Forfeiture law;
- 5) My sponsorship of several early-out programs for employees to cut the state workforce without massive layoffs;
- 6) State aid for local public education and the City of Westland;
- 7) Being chief sponsor of the Michigan Strategic Investment Fund and
- 8) My office staff's fine work on constituent problems.

Library called waste of money

To the editor:

Unfortunately, the proposed Westland Public Library will be a tragic waste of the taxpayers' money. It will be an underused and overpriced political boondoggle at a time when tax money is getting increasingly hard to come by.

Why? Because libraries are obsolete!

Printed books are no longer the way the public gets the information they need. As a source of public information the library is destined to become a high priced horse and buggy on the information super highway.

The communications revolution has forever altered the way the public gets useful information. In the 19th century, books were the only source of in-depth information available to the public. But in those days, the known world of knowledge extended only from Aristotle to Dickens—Darwin was still only an underground classic.

In the modern world of information, books are frequently hopelessly out of date within a few months of being printed. Even the best municipal libraries are increasingly nothing but sad collections of obsolete books that can be found on the discount tables in any of our book retailing super stores.

Alternate sources of information are already multiplying faster than our ability to absorb that information. One hundred channel cable television is already here - 500 cable television is coming. Home computers that network with other computers and with data bases world wide are available now.

Additionally, the CD-ROM has revolutionized the way information is disseminated unlike anything since Gutenberg's invention of moveable type. Even "moveable" type has been made obsolete by the computer disk and the laser printer.

Further, the mass retailing of low-priced paperback editions in every category of book can not be ignored. For those who are interested, incredibly cheap used books are available to suit every taste. Unlike the 19th century, today few people are too poor to buy books if they really want them.

I propose the following much cheaper and more realistic alternative to an expensive 19th century style public library. The city should establish a large, well-lighted reading and study area with an attached non-circulating reference room equipped with state of the art computers and printers capable of networking with outside data bases.

While libraries may be obsolete - thinking, reading, studying and working is not obsolete. In our increasingly crowded and distracting world many people just need a quiet place to "get away" - to read, to study, to work. And, an up to date non-circulating reference library equipped with on-line computers and laser printers will assure that our citizens have access to the best and most accurate information available.

So don't let the politicians waste our tax money on an expensive 19th century style horse and buggy library. Instead insist on a 21st century "Information and Study Center" that we can adapt to the coming information super highway. It will be much cheaper in the long run and will better serve the needs of the public.

Health care needs quality assessment

To the editor:

As a nurse, mother of a school-age child, and health care consumer, I have been following the debate over health care reform with great interest. I am concerned that current working proposals do not include a way to monitor the quality of the services that are provided. I have worked for Michigan Peer Review Organization (MPRO) for the past eight years. MPRO conducts medical peer review for Medicare and Medicaid and I have seen first hand how important this review is to the quality of health care in Michigan and nationwide. External review and provision of feedback is also important to assuring that services are truly medically necessary and appropriate.

MPRO also evaluates data for broad patterns of care and measures the outcomes from the care. When we identify practices that vary from those with the best outcomes, we work with the health care community to improve performance. As an independent third party, MPRO is able to analyze this type of data and provide objective feedback to health care providers.

I would like to see a provision for state-based quality improvement organizations in the health care reform package. The organizations would act as consumer advocates through the evaluation of the quality of services, the provision of information to the community and through working with physicians and health care facilities to improve quality. The organization would also be in a position to evaluate consumer complaints and concerns as an unbiased third party.

NO ESCAPE

Stardom seems inevitable for actor

By MARGO DEWEY
Deputy News Editor

It's the year 2022. A ruthless prison warden has created the ultimate solution for his most troublesome and violent inmates: Absolom, a secret jungle island where prisoners are abandoned and left to die.

And that begins the story of the upcoming action-packed production No Escape starring Ray Liotta which opens this week at all local theaters.

Liotta, a seasoned actor, has starred in popular movies such as Field of Dreams, Goodfellas, Unlawful Entry and Article 99.

In No Escape he portrays Marine Capt. John Robbins who is convicted of murdering a commanding officer. Absolom means no escape, no hope and almost no chance of survival.

Liotta said the Robbins characters was one of the more challenging roles in his film career.

"It was challenging in the sense of the action I had to do," Liotta said. "There was some good emotion in it. It's an action movie, but it's more character driven."

Liotta said he lost quite a bit of weight to prepare for all of the demanding physical scenes which included fighting, running and trying to escape from hundreds of other prisoners in the movie.

"I was like 22 or 23 percent body fat before I started the movie, and then I went down to only 12 percent body fat," Liotta said. "I was really lean. I went on a diet. It was hard work. In fact, it was a pain in the butt."

Usually Liotta said he has to put on weight for a movie such as in Field of Dreams or Domin- ick and Eugene.

Shot in the middle of the rain forest in Australia, Liotta said he would get up every morning before a shoot and run with his trainer.

"We would start a shoot about 3 a.m. or 4 a.m.," Liotta said. "I would get up two hours before I had to be on the set and run with my trainer. It was so dark my driver would have to leave his lights on and follow us down the road so we wouldn't trip or bump into a snake."

Filming began for No Escape May 17, 1993. It took 12 weeks to complete the shoot which took place in Queensland and New South Wales, Australia.

rain forests, dramatic cliffs and sea needed for the screen adaptation of Richard Herley's 1988 British science fiction adventure novel The Penal Colony, a story of condemned men forced to find meaning in lives that have been reduced to their barest existence.

"We were literally in the middle of the rain forest," Liotta said. "We had to travel about a 1/2 hour off the regular road, down dirt roads to just get to the set. Conditions where we shot were horrible but great because they provided that additional edge to the movie."

"Also, it was the winter time which meant it wasn't suppose to rain, however, it rained almost every day. So, there was just tons of mud. There was probably six or seven inches worth of mud."

Liotta said in order for the actors to get their traction to complete the physical aspects of the movie, grass had to be placed over the soggy ground.

A native of New Jersey, Liotta began acting at the University of Miami, appearing in stage productions of A Streetcar Named Desire, The Taming of the Shrew and West Side Story.

After graduating with a bachelor of fine arts degree, he moved to New York and landed a role on the NBC daytime drama Another World, playing the character of Joey Perrini for three years. He then became a series regular on the prime time shows Casablanca and Our Family Honor.

He said he enjoys acting and likes the challenge of portraying characters.

"Acting is a very unnatural thing," Liotta said. "You're

"I'm not very technical minded. I don't know how to work a computer. I don't like calculators."

using someone else's words. You have to perform it on cue, and you are doing it before a lot of people. So, any kind of acting is difficult because it is a very unnatural thing to do, but yet, it is the most natural thing to do because you pretend as you do as kids."

Whether it's on stage or before dozens of lights and cameras, Liotta said he doesn't prefer one aspect of acting over another.

"You're acting no matter what," Liotta said. "You're creating something that doesn't exist and make it appear as if it is really happening."

"The material selection and timing between acting on stage versus television is different."

Liotta said he really didn't know what he wanted to do as a career while he was attending college, and acting was just something he decided to try.

"I decided on theater, and I'm still not sure the reason for it," Liotta said. "I'm glad I did. I think I chose theater to avoid other subjects at the time. I had a great acting teacher who gave me a number of opportunities. I thought why not give it a shot."

After he made his commitment in college to become an actor, Liotta said there was one year where he acted in 40 to 50 plays.

Not every actor is lucky enough, however, to land a big role the moment they graduate from college. For some it takes years of trial and error. Liotta said his luck ran "somewhere in the middle."

"The third day I was in New York I landed a commercial, and within six months I was on a television soap," Liotta said. "But, it took me five years to get a movie. So I started out in the box real quick and then struggled off and on for about five years."

In the near future Liotta doesn't have any desires to get behind a camera and start directing. He said he just enjoys acting and wants to keep on performing in as many movies as he can.

"I'm not very technical minded," Liotta said. "I don't know how to work a computer. I don't like calculators. I have trouble enough with my answering machine."

"I like to produce. I wouldn't mind developing a project-finding material and getting the right people involved."

No Escape also stars Lance Henriksen, Michael Lerner, Kevin Dillon and Ernie Hudson.

Tornado season warnings are offered

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

Although the peak tornado season in Michigan is from June through August, it is not too early to prepare. Tornadoes can occur at any time of the year, and their prime season in Michigan begins next month.

"Because of tornado threats in the spring, we want to issue our warnings early so that people can be prepared for severe weather," said Mark Perkins, Van Buren Township public safety director. "Tornadoes are most likely to occur between 3 and 9 p.m., but have been known to occur at all hours of the day and night. Most occur in Michigan in April through July."

During the week of March 25 through April 2, Gov. John Engler declared Severe Weather Awareness Week to alert state residents to the dangers of tornadoes, flash floods and other severe weather conditions.

"The two most asked questions about severe weather is what is the difference between a tornado watch and a tornado warning," Perkins said. "A tornado watch means that conditions are right for development of a tornado. As that time, people should gather a first aid kit, flashlight and portable radio and prepare to take shelter. On the other hand, a tornado warning means that a tornado has been sighted nearby and everyone in the area should immediate action to find cover.

"To prepare for a tornado, have emergency supplies on hand, keep a battery-operated radio, a flashlight and a supply of fresh batteries in a convenient place," Perkins said. "Know the location of a designated shelter in public facility. Most schools, public buildings and shopping centers have such areas."

Perkins cautioned residents to stay away from doors, windows and outside walls in the event of a tornado.

"In homes and small buildings, go to the basement or to an interior part on the lowest level, and get under something sturdy," Perkins said. "If a tornado strikes while you are in a mobile homes or vehicle, leave them and go to the nearest shelter. If there isn't a shelter close by, lie in the nearest ditch and shield your head with your arms."

The PERFECT Wedding PLANNER

The first 50 things a bride needs to remember

There is no such thing as "too early" when a wedding is being planned.

Organization, plus careful attention to the multitude of detail surround that special day, will guarantee that the magical moments will become cherished lifetime memories.

Here are 100 important details no bride can forget.

1. Begin planning your wedding on the day you become engaged. Buy a notebook with envelopes to store brochures, photographs and your favorite ideas from magazines, newspapers or other weddings.

2. Send announcements of your engagement to your fiancé's and your hometown newspapers, as well as the newspaper in the town or towns where you both now live.

3. Have a serious conversation with your fiancé to determine the kind of wedding you both want. Will it be formal or informal? Traditional or contemporary? Religious or non-sectarian?

4. Set your wedding date with consideration of the amount of time necessary to plan the marriage ceremony and celebration of your dreams.

5. Help to orchestrate a meeting of your parents and your future in-laws soon after you become engaged. Typically, the groom's family make the first move to become acquainted with the bride's family.

6. Meet with your clergyman, rabbi or judge to learn the religious and legal requirements you must fulfill prior to the marriage ceremony. Discuss the kind of wedding you want.

7. Consider writing some parts of your own wedding ceremony, or select a favorite reading, hymn or song to be included in the service.

8. Study the tradition of the unity candle and consider incorporating it in your marriage ceremony. Two candles are placed at the front of the church to represent the join.

9. Discuss a realistic budget for your wedding with your groom, your parents and his parents. Remember to account for every aspect of the celebration, fees for hired professionals, and appropriate taxes and gratuities.

10. Establish your wedding budget and decide who will pay for what, including contributions from both of your families.

11. Consider hiring a professional wedding consultant to assist in planning your wedding.

12. Compile a guest list to determine the amount of space necessary to accommodate attendees at the wedding and the reception.

13. Consider the number of young children in your immediate family and determine the need for baby-sitting service during your wedding weekend.

14. Tour each of the better hotels in the town where you'll be married and select a property to suggest to your out-of-town guests. Many hotels will provide a group rate as well as reserve a block of adjacent rooms for your guests.

15. Research all possible locations for your marriage ceremony and provide a written confirmation of your requested date and time of service.

16. Research all possible locations for your reception and provide written confirmation of your requested date and time of service.

17. Extend personal invitations to your closest family members and friends to serve as members of your wedding party. Be sure to discuss the logistical details of their participation in your wedding celebration.

18. Interview caterers to select the best individual to provide your food services. Establish a contract that confirms all details and prices.

19. Select a baker to create the wedding cake to be served at your reception and design a special top tier that you will preserve to savor at your first anniversary. Design a groom's cake to be served at the rehearsal dinner or the wedding reception.

20. Consider the tradition of bridesmaids' charms in your wedding cake and order the appropriate novelties for your baker.

21. Interview florists to select the best individual to provide your wedding flowers. Establish a contract that confirms all details and prices.

22. Meet with the wedding director of your church or synagogue to learn the proper procedure for your marriage ceremony. Is there a room where you and the bridesmaids can dress for the ceremony?

23. Seek the advice of your wedding director on proper floral arrangements for the interior of the church or synagogue.

24. Seek the advice of your wedding director on appropriate wedding music.

25. Consider the services of a professional vocalist or musician as part of your marriage ceremony.

26. Interview professional musicians to perform the kind of music you want for your reception. Choose a style of music that complements the theme of your wedding reception.

27. Interview professional photographers to select the best individual to provide your wedding photography. Establish a contract that confirms all details and prices.

28. Consider the services of a videographer to preserve the scenes of your wedding ceremony and reception. Interview professional videographers and establish a contract that confirms all details and prices.

29. Study the pages of Elegant Bride to find the wedding gown of your dreams as well as beautiful dresses for the bridesmaids and the perfect formal wear for the men of the wedding party.

30. Select a wedding gown and veil that reflect your own fashion style and flatter your figure. Place your order and deposit with a full-service bridal specialty store or the bridal salon in your favorite department store.

31. Shop for the bridesmaids' gowns with the help of your honor attendant. Be sure to obtain a fabric sample of your selection to use in dyeing shoes to match.

32. Seek the advice of your florist in designing the perfect bouquets for you and your bridesmaids. Consider the style and color of the dresses as well as the availability of your favorite blooms.

33. Order a pretty nosegay to toss among your single female friends as you leave for your honeymoon, if you plan to preserve your wedding bouquet.

34. Plan a coordinated color scheme for your wedding that is translated through the bridesmaids' gowns, wedding flowers, reception table linens and centerpieces.

35. Schedule appointments for personal fittings of the bridesmaids' gowns.

36. Order appropriate jewelry and fashion accessories for all the bridesmaids and include it as one of your gifts to them.

37. Order wedding invitations, announcements and personal stationery that reflect the formality of your wedding celebration.

38. Consider the services of a calligrapher to address your wedding invitations and announcements. Establish a contract that confirms all details and prices.

linens and placemats; bed and bath linens; cookware and appliances.

41. Remember that word of mouth is the proper method of informing family and friends of your bridal registry. Ask your mother to help spread the word about where you're registered.

42. Suggest several honeymoon dream destinations to your groom. Choose locations that offer things to do as well as a relaxing retreat.

43. Meet with your caterer to design the menu to be served at your wedding reception. Agree upon the date you will confirm the final number of expected guests.

44. Select a serving style that is most compatible with the type of reception you have planned and the number of guests to be served. Consider a cocktail reception, sit-down meal or buffet.

45. Determine if liquor will be served at your reception and how drinks will be presented to guests.

46. Design a printed place card or menu card as a memento of your wedding reception.

47. Seek your parents' help in creating a seating plan for the reception.

48. Offer assistance to future in-laws who live out-of-town for planning the rehearsal dinner. Your fiancé's mother may appreciate knowing of several suitable locations for the pre-wedding celebration.

49. Help your mother, your fiancé's mother and your grandmothers in the selection of their dresses for your wedding. Determine the best flowers to accessorize their attire and order appropriate corsages from your florist.

50. Shop at your favorite jewelry store with your groom to select your wedding bands. Design an inscription to be engraved on the inside of each ring.

The PERFECT Wedding PLANNER

It's a snap

Wedding photographer is an important choice for couples

Selecting the wedding photographer is one of the most important decisions a bride and groom can make for their big day.

Posed, formal photographs are no longer considered the "in" thing. Today, more relaxed and intimate photos are preferred by most wedding couples.

To make sure the wedding day will remain memorable through photographs, the following is suggested:

- Always hire a professional.

- Ask friends or family members who have been married recently who have been married recently who they hired and get their advice.

- Find various styles of wedding albums and decide which you prefer.

- Keep an open mind with the photographer, but make sure he or she understand exactly what you want before, during and after the ceremony.

- Reserve a time with the photographer, but make sure he or she understands exactly what you want before, during and after the ceremony.

- Ask local newspapers if you need to supply a black-and-white photo or a color so your portrait will look its best in the announcement section.

- Have a photographer visit the church and reception area beforehand in order to get a better idea of what's to come.

- Ask the photographer to arrive early so those wedding jitters don't increase.

- After the wedding is completed, when you see the proofs, select the images you like and the sizes.

- Make sure you are pleased with all of your selections before making that final payment.

The excitement of being asked for the hand in marriage is now over. The parents on both sides have been informed of the marriage to come.

Now arrives the big dilemma. Who pays for what in a wedding ceremony?

Bridal gown hints offered

Vera Wang, fashion designer and founder of Vera Wang Bridal House Ltd., in New York recently put together a helpful list of fashion tips for the bride to be.

- What should a bride take into consideration before buying her wedding dress? - To be appropriately dressed, she must consider: How she is getting married? How much she is willing or can she spend; what the groom would like; her own style and her own wishes.

- What should a bride take into consideration prior to selecting a bridesmaid dress? - The ages, shapes and sizes of her attendants, how they will echo, enhance or contrast the bride and price.

- What are your inspirations for this spring/summer season - for bride and bridesmaid? - Always, silhouette and shape, sophisticated yet feminine and flirtatious looks and transparency and layering.

- What fabrics did you use in this bridal collection? - Organza, tulle, tulle over organza, satin with organza, lace as borders, crepe.

- What fabric is the most comfortable (cool) for a spring/summer bride and bridesmaid? - A lightweight crepe or organza.

- Are brides using more color in their bridal attire? - Some brides love touches of color or our "white and ivory" bi-color dresses, perfect with antique or heirloom veils.

- Which is your favorite bridal dress from this collection? - I have a bridal dress in satin with a stretch illusion halter neckline and an overskirt of tulle with a ribbon edge. It is both modern and clean, yet feminine and romantic.

Hello Dolly

Local actors appear in musical production

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

When the curtain rises on the Players Guild of Dearborn production of Hello Dolly on May 6, several local residents will be featured on stage and behind the scenes.

Playing the role of Horace Vandergelder is Jim Hand of Belleville. Wally Krause of Westland portrays Barnaby Tucker and musical directors are Randy Blouse and Rich Alder, both of Westland. Cast members from Wayne, Inkster and Canton Township also are featured, including Verry Plague, Lauracindy Plague, Corinne Fine and Denise Scioli of Canton Township, Michelle Illes of Wayne and Autumn McNish of Westland.

"I'm enjoying the role of Barnaby because he's so funny. He is very innocent, and he says and does things that turn out to be hilarious," said Krause. "Barnaby is just a kid - he's never kissed a girl, he's never learned how to dance and he's having things happen to him that he's never experienced before."

While Barnaby and his friend Cornelius are on their own mission to kiss a girl and see the stuffed whale at Barnum's Museum, Dolly is arranging a marriage between widow Irene Malloy, played by Beth Wingert, and Vandergelder, billed as a "well known Yonkers half-a-millionaire."

Cast members also enjoy the "Gay 90s" era of the play which features feather boas, elegant hats and the hustle and bustle of New York.

Krause said he enjoys playing a variety of roles.

"I particularly like to play the guy who provides the comic relief in a serious play and the unlikely romantic hero," said Krause. "It's also fun to play wimps."

Krause, a graduate of John Glenn High School, was active in high school productions.

"I played in Clockwork, Welcome to the Monkey House and I played the Mad Hatter in Alice in America Land," Krause said. "I won a theater award in my senior year."

After graduation, Krause enrolled as a theater major at Henry Ford Community College.

"I decided to get involved in community theater productions, and my first play was Noises Off for the Wyandotte Community Theater. Since then, I check around to see which group is casting and which plays I'd like to perform in," Krause said. "I'd like a career in the theater. I know that it's difficult, but I think I can do it," he said.

ing in theater productions, Krause sings in a barbershop quartet.

Hello Dolly, which is set in the 1890s, features Diana Reynolds in the title role, Jim Hand of Belleville as Horace Vandergelder and Julie Yolles as Minnie Fay.

Producer/directors are Lisa and Don Andres and choreographer is Valeria Mould.

The play opens at 8 p.m. May 6, with additional shows on May 7, 13, 14, 15, 20, 21 and 22. Evening shows are staged at 8 p.m. and Sunday matinees are at 2:30 p.m.

Tickets are $9 in advance and $10 at the door, and group discounts are available by calling 561-TKTS.

The Players Guild of Dearborn is located at 21730 Madison, near Monroe and Outer Drive.

Historic Greenfield Village store back in business

Operating under a new "old" name, the J.R. Jones General Store is back in business this week at historic Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

Formerly known as the Elias Brown General Store, the building has been closed to visitors for more than two years while research and conservation of the building and its artifacts has taken place.

"The store inventory was so eclectic, we weren't able to tell a clear story," said curator Donna Braden. "To confuse matter more, the building came from one place, the sign from another and the stock from at least nine different stores."

In order to develop a focused program, the store needed to be put into the context of a specific time and place. Since the biggest artifact - the building - was from Waterford, the place was quickly and easily determined. The time period was set in the 1880s, because that was a pivotal time in the consumer culture, and, also because the owner between 1882 and 1888 kept the most solid documentation.

"The store will appear as it might have in 1886, a time when James R. Jones had the only operating telephone in town. The shelves will be lined with products of the time, from corsets and canned goods to cow bells and Coe's Dyspepsia Cure," she said.

Currently, Louisville Slugger baseball bats, fishing equipment and canned goods are prominently displayed in the front window. Community notices are posted on the walls, and salt pork, pickle and sugar barrels are lined up on the floor.

In addition, hundreds of products from stove polish and bolts of cloth to shaving mugs and kerosene lamps are arranged for the 1880s consumer.

The general store is one of 80 historic structures showcased in Greenfield Village, the 81-acre outdoor museum in Dearborn.

Competency hearing set in bludgeoning death of wife

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A Westland man, charged with first-degree murder in the bludgeoning death of his 47-year-old wife, faces a competency hearing before Detroit Recorder's Judge Helen Brown on June 16.

Paul Thomas Cramer, 48, told Westland police officers he killed his wife by beating her about the head with a wooden baseball bat as she slept in their family home during the early morning hours on March 29, according to Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe.

Paulette Cramer was allegedly beaten as she lay in the couple's bed sleeping around 2 a.m. Mrs. Cramer was pronounced dead later that morning at Garden City Hospital of head injuries.

According to Wayne County medical examiner Dr. Sawait Kanlun, whose autopsy report was read into the court record, the 120-pound victim died of at least three blunt force injuries to the head.

Cramer, who was not permitted bail, faces up to life imprisonment if convicted.

The couple's daughter, Pamela Cramer, was inside the family home located on the 32000 block of Sandra Lane when the alleged bludgeoning occurred. According to testimony taken during preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court, the 25-year-old daughter heard "slamming noises" as she was laying in bed across the hall from the couple's room.

"I heard the garage door close and my dad's truck leave. I said 'something's not right,'" Cramer testified.

When Cramer went to her parent's bedroom to investigate she found her mother lying on the bed with blood on her face.

"I sorta did a double take. I saw something on her face, then I noticed it was blood," she said. "She wasn't breathing and didn't have a pulse," the daughter testified.

The defendant drove directly to the Westland Police Station and confessed to the crime. According to Stobbe, Cramer went to the front desk and held his hands in the air and said, "I surrender - I just killed my wife."

Westland police officer Greg Angelosanto testified that after arresting the defendant, Cramer said, "There's no problem. You'll find my fingerprints on the bat. You'd have to know what's going on to understand it."

According to Stobbe, Cramer suspected his wife of having an affair. However, Stobbe added, family and friends told police it was highly unlikely the woman was committing adultery because she was far too busy with her work.

"He is a jealous man. There is no indication that she did that," Stobbe said.

Stobbe added that Cramer was sent home from his job as a tool mechanic at General Motors Hydra-Matic plant in Ypsilanti the previous morning when he broke down crying.

Wayne seniors celebrate some very special days

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Deputy News Editor

It was their golden moment, and they were able to celebrate it with friends and family members surrounding them.

Wayne Senior Services officials organized one of the largest club birthday parties for the Golden Hour Club members who recently turned 80 years old or older at the Wayne Community Center April 21.

"Today we are celebrating the birthdays of the members of the Golden Hour Club," said Audrey Tucker, Wayne Senior Services director. "We have seven of our members who are more than 90 years old. We also have students here from Jefferson Elementary School to help celebrate."

The Golden Hour member who was celebrating the most happy years was long-time Wayne resident Georgia Austin who will turn 98 in October. Other birthday guests included: Herb Arvin, Olive Bartels, Betty Boyd, Doris Bubnes, Lillian Carkner, Vera Christy, Anna Coppola, Annie Cornett, Mae Daily, Mary DeKlerk, Dalphine DePetro, Tony Drager, Elizabeth Durand, Marion Faulkner, Lucille Goetz, Ora Horne, Philip Hunter, Nettie Hurley, Gladys Jackson, Florence Knutson, Ruth Lancaster, Dick Logerquist, Marie Logerquist, Eleanor Maas, Pearl Martin, Mabel McKinstry, Nellie Mills, Ethel Moore, Martha Morgan, Elsie Neiman, Winifred Nichols, Margaret Prieskorn, Ethel Richardson, Fielding Risner, Mae Risner, Edna Samuelson, Leona Schorling, Lucille Senninger, Studie Smith, Helen Stack, Georgia Thomason, Winona Thome, Bernice Trombley and Betty Wendt.

The Jefferson students sang Lollipop and Friendship to entertain the birthday group. Jefferson first-grade teacher Doris Prieskorn said the students have been joining the seniors on various events which included a recent trip to the State Theater to see Sesame Street.

"What is so nice is that the children enjoy the seniors, and in return, they enjoy the children," Prieskorn said. "The students just love to talk to the seniors. This is our first joint venture with the seniors, and we're hoping to continue this next year."

Austin said she has lived a very long and happy life. She had four children, two daughters and two sons. She said she loves to dance and enjoys talking to people.

What's her secret to living such a long happy life?

"It's damn hard work," Austin said.

Anna Copella has lived in the Wayne community since 1925. She recently turned 90. "My husband Joseph Copella was the first shoemaker in Wayne," Copella said. "We have always enjoyed this town. I've had a very wonderful life."

Guests were treated to a birthday lunch which included, of course, birthday cake.

Accused getaway car driver found not-guilty by jury

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A 21-year-old Garden City resident, accused of driving the getaway car in a December 1993 armed robbery, was found not guilty by a jury in Detroit Recorder's Court.

Shawn Michael Fisher was charged with armed robbery in connection with the Dec. 20, 1993 robbery and beating of a store clerk with a 2-foot long metal pipe at the 7-Eleven convenience store, located at 172 John Hix Road in Westland.

The other defendant in the case, Charles Emory Gates, 19, pleaded guilty to the armed robbery which netted $33.50. Gates was sentenced to two to 10 years in prison.

During an earlier preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court, the 43-year-old store clerk testified that the robber, whom the clerk identified as Gates during a police line-up, came into the store twice on Dec. 20. The first time, the victim testified, Gates put some merchandise on the counter and said he would be back to pay for it.

About 20 minutes later, around 1:50 a.m., Gates returned and asked the clerk for a package of cigarettes in addition to the other merchandise. When the clerk reached up to grab them, Gates hit the victim on the side of his head with the metal pipe causing him to fall to the floor, the employee said.

The victim said he saw Gates swing the pipe again and blocked his head and was struck on the back of his hand while laying on the floor.

Gates then smashed the store register with the pipe and ordered the victim to give him the money, the clerk testified.

After taking the cash, the clerk said, he saw the thief run across the store parking lot and head north on John Hix Road. The employee was later taken to the hospital for medical treatment.

The clerk testified that he never saw Fischer during the robbery, but that Fischer was a regular customer at the 7-Eleven located on Merriman Road near Palmer.

According to Westland police Sgt. Donald Haigh, Fischer voluntarily came to the police station and confessed to his participation in the robbery.

Belleville places tourney title on the block

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville tuned up for the defense of its Cliff Keen Invitational baseball title by sweeping both ends of a double-header from neighboring Romulus on Saturday.

With Brian Dick on the mound, the Tigers posted a 12-2 victory in an abbreviated opener called because of the mercy rule. Then, in the nightcap Jason Reeder blanked the Eagles 9-0 to boost Belleville's overall record on the season to 4-5. They are 1-2 in the inaugural Mega Red Conference.

The two-time defending Cliff Keen champ will place their crown on the block Saturday when they meet Saline at 10 a.m. at Ann Arbor Huron High School. Then, at 4 p.m. they will travel to Ypsilanti High for their second game of the day.

The two-weekend tournament will wrap up the following Saturday at Ann Arbor High School field. Pioneer

"We're going to try to make it three in a row over there," said Belleville coach John Bertz, who was impressed at the Tigers latest output. "We have the pitching, and if the defense and the hitting improve, we should have a shot at it."

There are 16 teams seeking the championship.

In the meantime, Dick held Romulus to four hits in the opening game, struck out six and walked four for the victory. Ryan Evans was charged with the loss. He gave way to reliever Mike Deaton in the fifth.

Dick helped his own cause with a pair of hits and opened the door to two runs scored, while teammate Pat Wilkerson also drove in two runs on a single and double. All-area cager Ralph Truitt slammed two hits in four official trips to the plate.

Romulus got two hits and scored both of the Eagles runs. Sophomore Nick Locklear had a pinch-hit top of the sixth single that drove in the Eagles' final run.

In the nightcap, Jason Reeder was in control all the way as he struck out 12, walked one and gave up two hits, a harmless single to Joe Hojara in the fifth and a seventh-

Belleville relays set Saturday

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Some of the top high school athletes in Michigan will converge upon Belleville on Saturday to compete in the annual Tiger Relays.

Belleville, the last Wolverine "A" Conference track and field champ and a strong contender for the newly-organized Mega Conference Red Division title is among the favorites to win its own invitational.

Some eight men and women track relay teams, including Tiger arch rival, Ypsilanti, are slated to see action.

"We feel there will be a very competitive field this year," noted Belleville veteran track coach Dave Medley. "We have had some excellent athletes at this meet in the past. This meet will be no exception."

The finals for the invitational will be staged at 1:30 p.m.

One of the favorites to win a gold for the Belleville women's team is Tammy Petrowski, a long-distance runner who starred in cross country. Petrowski accounted for a double victory against Wyandotte last week.

Although Wyandotte won the Mega Conference meet, 78-51, Petrowski swept both the 2-mile and one-mile events.

Petrowski toured the two-mile event in 13:29 and also covered the mile in 6:19.

Forgotten champs

After an incredible 10-0 campaign in the Western Suburban Junior Football League, the Canton Lions Junior Varsity team wondered why they were left off the sports pages. The champs were squeezed out by basketball and swimming and wrestling. And now during the traditional time, the forgotten champs of the Super Bowl and American Division (8-0) can finally receive their due recognition. They are pictured above with their winning trophies. Team members are: Kyle Kunec, (front row, left) Aaron Fant, Joey Bradford, Matthew Schacht, Lorenzo Carlson, Brian Hewitt, Archie Kinney, Justine Sprowl and Paul Hurst; in the second row are Dean Shirkman, Dan Morgan, Jeremy Philo, Thomas Hoffman, Scott Archer, T. J. Gibbons, Brian Flanagan, Mike Klimer, Jacob Lyons and Gordon Perrin; in the third row are Andrew Seiber, William Wanniger, Shawn Reynolds, Thomas Mazur, Michael Trobley, Justin Bradley, Jason Carruthers, Brandon Evans, Aaron Wiley, Joan Deboe and Duncan Burgess; the coaches are Ron Bradley, Mike Deboe, Kevin Wiley, Matt Kuzawinski and Paul Hurst. Wayne skater stars for Kent

A former Wayne hockey star has made his mark on the ice at Kent State University.

Jim Mitchell was the ninth-leading scorer in ice hockey for the Golden Flashes during the recently concluded campaign.

Under the direction of fifth-year head coach Bill Switaj, Kent icers finished with a 11-26-2 overall record. They were 6-22-2, however, in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association (CCHA).

Mitchell has played in all 39 games for Kent, accumulating 21 points on seven goals and 14 assists. Mitchell had his most productive weekend of the year on Nov. 26-27 in a Kent State sweep of Ferris State. At that time he registered five points on five assists that weekend.

The son of James and Gloria

Mitchell of Wayne, Jim is a business administration major at Kent. He is a graduate of West Waterloo High School in Waterloo, Iowa.

The Golden Flashes closed the year with a pair of losses against the University of Michigan in the first-round of the CCHA playoffs. The Wolverines won the first game 5-4 in an overtime, then came back to bury Kent 10-3 in the second encounter of a different kind.

Romulus High School baseball players lose to Belleville

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Before they fell on hard times in Belleville on Saturday, coach Don Foley and the Romulus Eagles did manage to win two of three games earlier in the week.

With sophomore right-hander Ryan Evans on the mound, the Eagles outlasted Ypsilanti Lincoln, 12-9, on Monday. They also subdued Robichaud 5-1 as senior Jesse Flores got the victory.

Sandwiched between the two wins, however, was a lopsided 12-0 setback against a state-ranked Ann Arbor Pioneer.

"There were some bright spots last week, such as our pitching," said Foley, "but our defense has been horrendous. We committed eight errors against Pioneer and six against Lincoln - defense has to definitely improve if we are to keep on winning."

Evans took over from starter Steve O'Connor who worked the first 3-2/3 innings. It was Evans' two-run homer in the sixth that chased in Dan Czajkowski which gave the Eagles a convincing 7-4 lead. However, the Railsplitters came back for three runs in the bottom of the seventh to give Romulus a scare.

John Deyampert worked losing pitcher Mike Moyer for three walks, stole four bases and also scored three runs while Eric Lambert contributed a pair of hits, including a run-scoring double for the winners. Gary Harris drove in a pair of runs with two sacrifice flies.

Ann Arbor's Scott Kennedy, who two-hit Romulus, was out in front of the Eagles all the way. He notched 11 strikeouts and walked six in earning the 12-0 shutout. The Pioneer pitcher lost his bid for a no-hitter in the fourth when Mario Thomason singled. Sophomore Mike Deaton collected the only other hit off of Kennedy, a single in the fifth. Romulus scored twice in the first and added two more in the second and one run in the third before Robichaud hurler Stan Hill settled down and gathered goose eggs the rest of the way.

Flores scattered two Bulldog hits, fanned four and walked an equal number in picking up his first win of the season. Flores aided his own cause with a pair of base hits.

Wayne Memorial High School players win 3 in new 'Red' division

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Behind the phenomenal pitching performance of junior right-hander Shannan Green, Wayne Memorial is off to an outstanding start in its new home in the Mega Conference Red Division.

Green, a 6-2, 180-pound hurler fired a one-hitter against Garden City in a 4-1 victory in his and Wayne's inaugural appearance in the conference on Monday. In his two performances this season, the young pitcher hasn't allowed a ball to be hit into the outfield. He has given up but two hits in 15-2/3 innings of work, while striking out 35 batters.

"He is off to an excellent start," said Wayne veteran coach Jim Chronowski, whose Zebras also ripped league rival, Taylor Center, 13-1, and Wyandotte 13-5 for a perfect 3-0 week.

Green whiffed 15 Garden City batters while walking five for his second win of the young campaign. He missed the shutout in the top of the sixth when Garden City scored its lone run.

In his two performances this season, the young pitcher hasn't allowed a ball to be hit into the outfield. He has given up but two hits in 15-2/3 innings of work, while striking out 35 batters.

Wayne collected 10 hits off of losing pitcher Tony Zyarca, who gave up three of those to Steve Duckett and two to Don Cicotte. Duckett drilled a pair of singles and a double and also stole a pair of bases. In the meantime, Cicotte hammered two doubles and drove in a run off of Zyarca, who notched seven strikeouts and walked two.

Scott Wetmore got the call against Taylor Center last Wednesday, and he responded with a four-hitter, including a solo third inning homer to Ron Revor. That was his "only bad pitch of the game," according to Chronowski. The junior right-hander also struck out nine, walked three.

Jason Overton led a 17-hit Wayne assault against loser Brad Ray. Overton checked in with two singles, a double and drove in three runs while scoring twice. Green chipped in with three hits, a pair of singles and a double. He also contributed two RBIs and scored twice.

Aaron Cagnon, a transfer from Farmington, helped the Wayne cause with three singles and three RBIs and scored twice. Adam Kidd, Bryan Johnson and Duckett each collected two hits.

In their week's finale, Wayne and Wyandotte exchanged three runs in the first inning, however, the Zebras exploded for six unanswered runs in the bottom of the third to rout the Bruins.

Chronowski started Chris Czarnik, who worked the first 4-2/3 innings before yielding to Green, who pitched the fifth and was relieved by Overton.

Wyandotte started Mike Wallace who, after pitching an inning and two thirds complained of a sore arm and was relieved by Derek Greene, who was charged with the loss.

Duckett again had an excellent day at the plate as he sliced two singles, two RBIs and scored twice. Cagnon scored three runs and latched on to two hits while Kidd bagged a pair of singles and a sacrifice that paved the way for 5 RBIs.

Cicotte, who had two singles, Phil Snow, with a single and 3 RBIs and Overton with two runs batted in, helped the Wayne cause.

Wayne had to contend with Lincoln Park and Tom Nolan, the dean of high school baseball coaches on Monday. Wayne returns home today to await a powerful Southgate Anderson before traveling on Friday to Monroe.

Optimists organize new Wayne club

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

Optimistic individuals are being sought to become charter members of the newly formed Wayne Optimist Club.

"We've never had an Optimist Club in Wayne, and I think it's time that we had one," said Ken Warfield, one of the three organizing members.

Warfield, Tom Kelly and Kathy Durler, along with the Breakfast Optimist Club of Ypsilanti, are hoping to stage a successful Charter Member Breakfast Party at 7 a.m. May 4 at the Omega Restaurant on Michigan Avenue.

Helping to form the new club is Elizabeth Mike, past president of the Ypsilanti club and current zone lieutenant governor.

"Some of the Optimist programs are Youth Appreciation Week, essay and oratorical contests, bike safety programs, Respect for Law Day and a number of sports activities for youth," said Mike, noting that the focus of the Optimist Club is on youth. "We need 25 charter members, but we are hoping for many more than that at our charter breakfast."

Although the first meeting

"I've always supported youth programs and I'm especially interested in the scholarships and oratorical programs for youth."

- Ken Warfield

is at 7 p.m., members may choose another meeting time if they wish, Mike said.

"The purpose of the Optimist Club is to develop optimism as a philosophy of life, to promote an active interest in good government and civic affairs, to inspire respect for the law and to promote patriotism and work for international accord and friendship," Mike said. "The purpose also is to aid and encourage the development of youth, in the belief that in giving of one's self in service to others will advance the well-being of man, his community and world."

The first official Optimist Club was started in 1911, and impetus for a nationwide Optimist movement began when the Optimist Club of Indianapolis was formed five years later. From its first days, Optimists Clubs placed their major efforts into youth services. Currently, there are more than 165,000 members of the organization, of which more than 10,000 are women.

"I tend to think optimistic already, so I very interested in this organization," Warfield said. "I've always supported youth programs and I'm especially interested in the scholarships and oratorical programs for youth."

The Wayne mayor and former fire chief said he has been a member of the Jaycees and Kiwanis clubs in the past and wants to continue his involvement in service groups.

Wayne Councilman Tom Kelly said he was attracted to the Optimist Club by its goals and the good that it does.

"I'm not the type of person who lends my name to an organization if I don't intend to be active," said Kelly, who anticipates a busy future with the newly formed club.

"I'm an optimist - that's how I live my life. Now, it's official," said Kathy Durler, who is a member of the Friends of the Western Wayne Campus and various Democratic Party organizations.

Cost of the May 4 buffet breakfast is $7, including tax and gratuity. Reservations can be made by calling Goldie Warfield at 595-4747.

First woman elected to lead conservation club

Since she joined the Huron Valley Conservation Association (HVCA) eight years ago, Ginger Bruder has been working to promote conservation through education.

Now, that she has been elected as the first woman to serve as president, she plans to expand the educational mission of the association and to increase the number of youth-focused programs.

"I can't say enough about our volunteers. We have 55 members and 50 percent of them are very active," Bruder said. "I've never seen such a high level of participation in any other group that I've been affiliated with. They are wonderful people, and they are always ready to help."

"One of my personal philosophies is to be willing to try new things. If someone presents a new idea and has a plan for it, why not try it? For example, one of our members is a golf enthusiast and he has come up with an idea for a golf outing," Bruder said.

The HVCA is part of the Michigan United Conservation Club (MUCC), the largest state conservation group in the nation.

"It wonderful to be a part of the MUCC," said Bruder. "The MUCC president, Bob Laich, has been an inspiration, a mentor and a role model for me. His leadership has been very helpful to us, and he is always accessible when we need his input."

"I got 'high' on conservation when I attended a MUCC Leadership Training Workshop at Higgins Lake," Bruder said. "Each January we send two of our members to the workshop for training."

Many of the programs that Bruder will be overseeing this year are ones that have been in place in the past.

"Each year, the HVCA has sponsored fishing clinics and hunter safety classes. It also provides Tracks magazines to students and provides a summer camping experience for boys and girls. This year the HVCA will send 18 youths and the Moose Lodge will send four youngsters to camp," she said.

"In keeping with the educational focus of the group, we plan to have speakers at our meetings, and to continue to provide displays at various community events, such as the Romulus Festival and the Belleville Strawberry Festival," Bruder said. "We'll be passing out our brochures and literature and talking about our future plans to prospective members."

Bruder also hopes to sponsor more youth-oriented activities.

Trustees accept president's resignation

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

When the Wayne County Community College (WCCC) Board of Trustees met last week, the major item on its agenda was the resignation of WCCC President Rafael Cortada.

"The meeting held no surprises," said Ted Scott, District 9 trustee. "Dr. Cortada's resignation was accepted, and he will be with us until July 10."

Cortada, who has headed WCCC since 1990, has accepted the presidency of Central Ohio Technical College and the post of director-dean of the Newark Campus of Ohio State University. Both educational institutions share the same campus.

"As I have said many times before, it is with deep regret that I view his resignation," Scott said.

Scott said a special meeting will be scheduled to put together guidelines for the selection of a new president.

"We'll probably use a similar format to that which we used to select Dr. Cortada. It worked well last time," Scott said.

The trustee said he will seek to have more input from western Wayne County in the process.

Five names will be submitted from each trustee and then the top eight candidates from those nominees will be evaluated by the board of trustees along with others who submit applications for the position.

Also on the agenda was the rental of three additional tractor-trailer units for the semi-driving program at the WCCC Western Center.

"The board approval the rentals, and this will allow us to expand our program by 60 students," Scott said. "The truck driving school has been a very successful program. It has provided a sound service for our students and many jobs for the graduates."

On the other hand, Scott said, a golfing program at a cost of $150,000 was tabled.

"I don't feel the golf program is within the realm of our objectives for the college," said Scott. "I don't believe we can begin a program like this when we are not fulfilling the other needs of the college. It's nice, but it doesn't answer the needs of Detroit and western Wayne County."

Super 'star' Photographer trains his lens on 'natural' beauty

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Robert Pfeiffer, owner and operator of the Wedding Star Studio of Dearborn, specializes in wedding video photography. In the past 30 years Pfeiffer has photographed and videotaped more than 7,000 weddings.

Having spent considerable time in both the states of Hawaii and Florida, Pfeiffer said he has become a great lover of outdoor photography and most of his wedding videos are tied in with some natural beauty, such as the waterfall in Dearborn or Heritage Park in Taylor.

Pfeiffer is offering 11 wedding photo packages starting at $495 and three high school senior portrait packages for $115, $195 and $295.

"We have a unique collection of high school portraits for graduates down through the years," he said, "we have had graduates pose with their boy or girl friend, their cars or motorcycles, a family member or even a pet."

"We have vowed for 30 years," Pfeiffer said, "that we would never set limits on ourselves or our photos/videos."

For Associated Newspaper card holders, Wedding Star Studio is offering several specials. "Included in our wedding specials is a $575 value gift including two 11x14 and one 20x24 inch canvas photos. We also offer a 10 percent discount for senior class photos. Call our office (565-8448) for further details," he said.

"While we prefer advance notice on wedding assignments," Pfeiffer said, "we are also known for taking many last minute wedding assignments."

"Originally, I wrote books, songs and other materials," he said, "and photography was a sideline. But after spending time in Hawaii and Florida, I found photography also had a great deal of appeal, particularly photos and videos that capture the beauty of creation. Today half my sales are of outdoor activities."

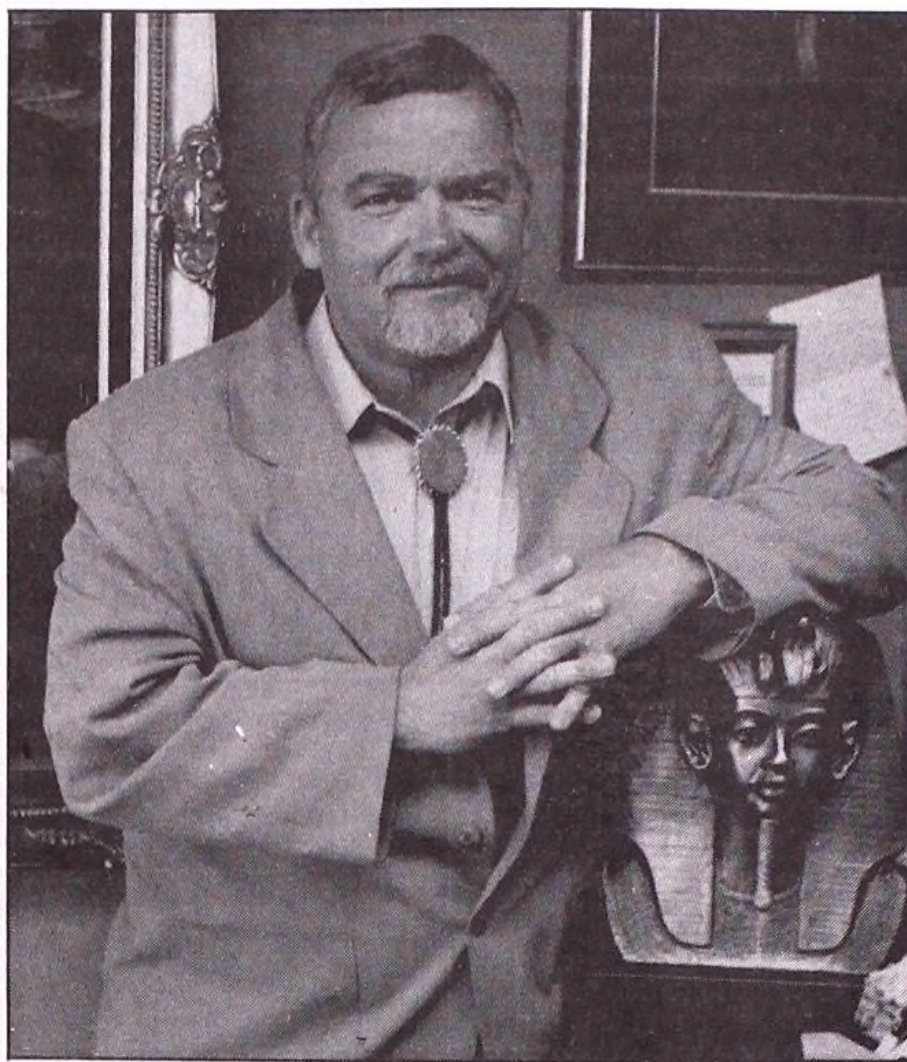

Pfeiffer also created one of the first modern wrestling movies in the U.S. entitled Ringside. "The two-hour movie later was purchased from us and renamed I Like to Hurt People and was carried by Blockbuster Video Stores," he said.

"Today I am looking for beautiful women models who will appear on a calendar coinciding with our 'Posedown' music video."

"The models will be dressed in bathing suits, leotards or other exercise gear," Pfeiffer said. The only qualifications the models must meet is that they be "single and utterly beautiful."

Wedding Star Studio is located at 24730 Michigan Ave., Dearborn. The studio is open from noon to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

Further information can be obtained by calling Wedding Star Studio at 565-8448.

Robert Pfeiffer, owner of Wedding Star Studios, has more than 30 years experience photographing weddings, portraits and nature. He specializes in finding natural settings for special wedding photos and is presently offering several special discount packages for VIP card holders. ANP photo by Jim McGill

Tanning salon provides kiss of the sun

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

Can't wait for spring? Anxious for a bit of summer sun? Want the sun-kissed look of those who spent the dismal weeks of winter in a tropical climate?

Romulus Tanning Salon has the answer. The facility is helping area residents get a jump on the summer season with a package deal on tanning and tanning supplies. For a limited time, VIP card holders can receive a 10-percent discount on lotions and tanning

People realize we're here and they know about the products we offer, but more than that we focus on honesty and service.

-Lindsay Brugger

packages, using either beds or booths.

Operating successfully for more than six years at 36640 Goddard Road in downtown Romulus, owner Lindsay Brugger caters to clients from 9 a.m. until midnight Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Fridays. The salon is open from 9 a.m. until 8 in the evening on Saturdays and from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays.

"They'd be coming in here past midnight if I let them,"

said the owner. "Business has been excellent. Establishing a business in the beginning is difficult, but we have done really well."

Brugger believes honesty and service have been the secrets of her success.

"People realize we're here and they know about the products we offer, but more than that we focus on honesty and service," she said. "I always change the bulbs when they need to be changed and keep the salon clean and comfortable."

"People come here because of my personality and (the way) people are treated," she continued. "We try to accommodate."

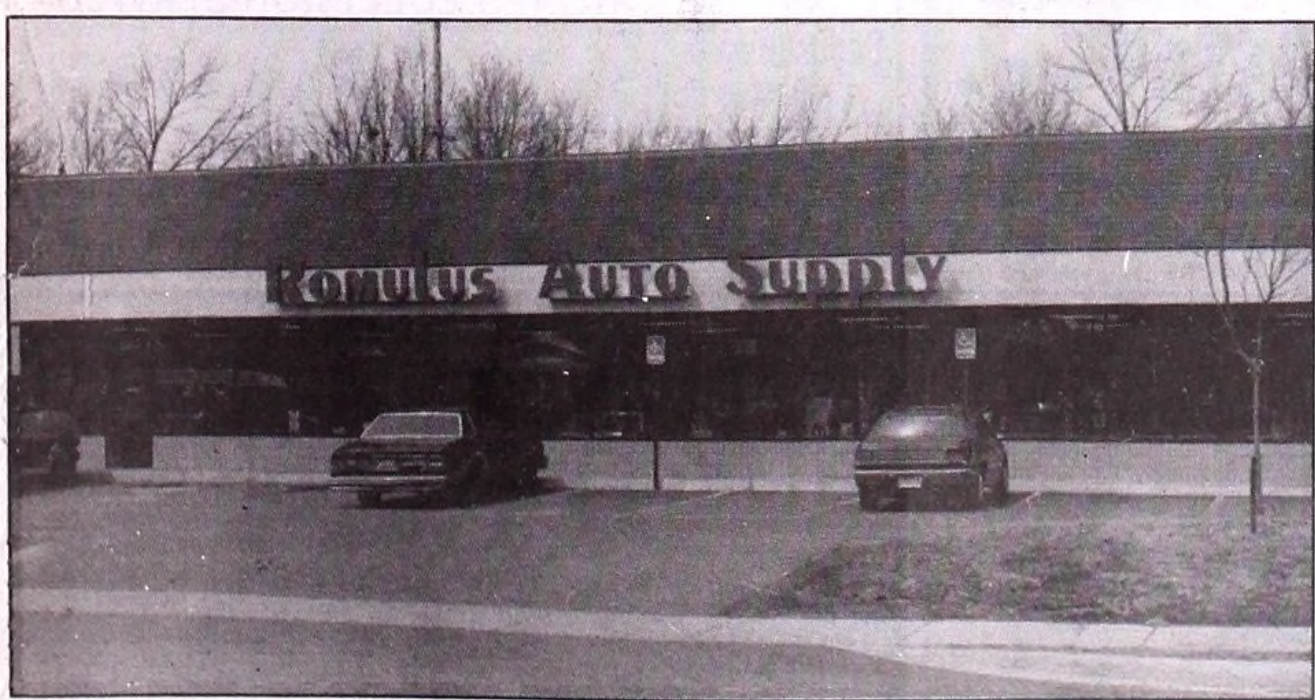

Before clients are led to the tanning rooms, Brugger or one of two other employees discuss skin conditions with the customer.

"We try to determine their skin type before deciding how long clients should stay under the lights," said Brugger. "I want to make sure you get the best tan and keep the skin moist, too. Overexposure can be very uncomfortable."

To accomplish these goals, Romulus Tanning Salon carries a variety of products that used together accelerate the tanning process, and also moisturize the skin.

"We let clients use indoor tanning lotions," said Brugger. "We sell a tanning gel, that when used with the shower gel, helps keep a tan longer and keeps the skin moist. Regular soap can strip the skin of moisture."

Romulus Tanning Salon also offers nail services including manicures and acrylics.

Wayne County mirrors President's job training vision

Job training issues are now in the spotlight as a result of the proposed Re-employment Act of 1994 which will revamp the national unemployment system.

Locally, Wayne County has taken a proactive approach to job training with the establishment of The Highland Park Job Center, the first state "One-Stop-Career Center."

The Highland Park Job Center combines the three major agencies that deal with putting people to work, from welfare departments to employment counselors for job seekers.

The Wayne County Job Connection, The Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) and the Department of Social Services work together to provide a unique mix of services all available under one roof, making it easier for the unemployed to get the job training, job placement assistance and the supportive services they need.

"This is a state-of-the-art job training facility," said Wayne

County Executive Edward McNamara. "It is where the future of job training is headed. Its uniqueness lies in the fact that for the first time, three service agencies like this are in one central location, which eliminates the runaround associated with social service agencies and job training offices."

"Combating unemployment is not an easy task, but when three agencies like this can work together, the results can be outstanding."

At The Highland Park Job Center, The Wayne County Job

Connection provides services to upgrade skills of people who may have never worked before or may be working toward becoming re-employed in a new career.

MESC provides labor exchange information and unemployment services. The Department of Social Services works with those on welfare and provides services that coordinate with customers' goals of getting back to work, such as transportation and child care.

"This represents a partnership for people," said Kathleen Alessandro, executive director of the Wayne County Job Connection. "We have begun to rethink how we do business, and with the opening of this state-of-the-art career center, we have to put people first."

The Highland Park Job Center assists the hard-to-serve population of Highland Park and Hamtramck, providing job training and job placement assistance. The services provided are free to those who qualify and include basic remediation, skills development, computer experience, and job search skills.

The Highland Park Job Center is located at 16480 Woodward. It is open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. For information regarding services call 865-0200. The Wayne County Job Connection also has a Dislocated Worker Assistance Office in Livonia (261-3420) and a Westside office in Dearborn (274-3700).

Quote of the Week

"At the end of the season, new clothes will be out of style. A night out will just be a memory the next day, but education is an investment."

Advice given to young people by Wayne County Community College Western Campus Dean Dr. Hattie Johnson.

Of Note

Man found guilty in beating

A 48-year-old Inkster man was found guilty of assault with the intent to do great bodily harm during a trial conducted last week in Recorder Court.

The defendant, Andrew Parham, waived his right to a jury trial and allowed Judge C. Kaufman to weigh the evidence and determine his fate.

Parham was arrested and charged with assault after he struck and beat an Inkster woman in the eyes and face with a coat hanger. "The assault occurred in the defendant's home," said Inkster Detective Charles Givens, who was in charge of the investigation. "The defendant had apparently invited the victim to his house and after an argument, he picked up a wooden coat hanger and struck her in the eyes and across the lip after she apparently refused his sexual advances."

Givens said that the court has not set a sentencing date. However, Parham could receive up to 10 years.

Accused student awaits hearing

A 18-year-old John Glenn High School junior is expected to appear for pre-trial in Westland 18th District Court on charges of disorderly person in connection with the April 12 release of two pepper mace bombs causing the evacuation of the school and sending eight people to the hospital for breathing difficulties.

Inkster attorney Steven Bullock has filed an appearance for his client who faces a maximum of 90 days in jail if convicted of the misdemeanor charge.

According to a press release issued by Bullock, "My client has already been tried and convicted by the school for this incident. He has been suspended from school and there is every indication that he is expected to pay $10,000 for the emergency people who responded to the scene. I'm not going to let my client's life be ruined over these accusations."

Wayne-Westland school officials, in cooperation with the Westland Fire Department, convened a student disciplinary hearing to determine whether the accused student should be expelled, according to Wayne-Westland Assistant Superintendent Gary Dell. The student has been suspended from school pending the decision.

Canton officials prepare for event

Plans for the annual Canton Township Liberty Fest are almost completed.

Each year, people from throughout western Wayne County come to Heritage Park, behind Township Hall, to marvel at the fireworks, classic cars, kiddie rides, food, clowns, music and more, said Robert Dates, recreation supervisor.

Steve King and the Dittilies will kick off the weekend with a 7:30 p.m. Friday free concert.

'Mystery woman' helps nab serial robbers

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A woman, who prefers to remain anonymous, is being praised by Romulus Police for her help in the capture of two service station bandits last Monday night, one of whom is an escapee from a state half-way house.

Neighboring police departments are now questioning the pair for possible involvement in at least 10 other gas station robberies, where cash and large numbers of lottery tickets were taken.

Romulus Detective Sgt. Gordon Malaniak said the woman had pulled into the service area of the Speedway Service Station at Wayne and Wick roads, when she noticed suspicious activities occurring inside the station office.

The witness watched the alleged holdup occur, in which cash and numerous state lottery tickets were taken, Malaniak said, and then called 9-1-1 on her car phone.

"The woman pulled her car across the street and continued to watch as the pair ran to their car and fled from the scene."

Sgt. Gordon Malaniak

The woman pulled her car across the street and continued to watch as the pair ran to their car and fled from the scene. Malaniak said the woman followed the pair in her car and stayed in phone contact with the police dispatcher all the way.

Police patrol units caught up with the pair about a mile and a half away on eastbound I-94, but the male suspect jumped out of the car as soon as his woman partner stopped the vehicle, Malaniak said.

The man, later identified as David R. Barron, 37, currently of Taylor, was nabbed by uniform police as he tried to hide in the tall grass.

Malaniak said it later was found there was an outstanding warrant for Barron for escaping from a half-way house. He also was charged with two counts of unarmed robbery.

His girlfriend, Bonnie L. Borgh, also of Taylor, was charged with two counts of unarmed robbery. The other robbery the pair is charged with taking part in was at the same service station on March 5.

Both were arraigned before 34th District Court Judge Henry Zaborowski on Wednesday. Barron was ordered held in lieu of $100,000 cash bond. Borgh's bail was set at $10,000 (10 percent).

A preliminary hearing is slated at 9 a.m. May 4. Malaniak said Borgh would later cash in the winning lottery tickets, but they complained that the highest winning amount on any of the tickets was $25.

On the job Work day visit provides mentor

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

"Have self-discipline, self-respect and set goals," is the advice that the new dean of the Western Center of Wayne County Community College (WCCC) shares with young people.

When 13-year-old Leah Houltz, a Blanchette Middle School student, visited Dr. Hattie Johnson on Take Our Daughters to Work Day, she received a recipe for success from the new dean.

"At the end of the season, new clothes will be out of style. A night out will be just be a memory the next day, but education is an investment," said Johnson.

The dean counseled the young student to study one to two hours every day and to use a tape recorder to preserve notes and classroom lectures.

"Play your tape back several times - the repetition will help you to learn. Also, make studying enjoyable by forming a study group with your friends," the dean said. "Keep your grades up, and maintain a B average, at least."

Johnson cautioned the Inkster student and other young girls to do what is best for themselves, not what their boyfriends want them to do.

"I'm telling you this just as I would tell a daughter of mine," Johnson said.

She advised Leah to identify her interests and to take an aptitude test to determine her strongest skills.

"Find a mentor - someone like myself - who can point out the pitfalls and provide guidance," said Johnson. "It is important to set goals, and then to take steps to fulfill them."

Johnson said she knew as a young girl growing up in North Carolina that she wanted more than to work on a farm and raise a family.

"My family encouraged me to go to college, and from my earliest memories I set my sights on a college education," said Johnson, a Winston-Salem State University graduate.

She graduated second out of a class of 22 in the nursing program and worked as a nurse for three years before becoming a nursing instructor. She received a master's degree from Catholic University of America and later earned her doctorate in higher education and administration from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

"I had no intention of working toward a doctorate until I had my transcripts evaluated and found that I was only three courses away from a dissertation. I received my doctorate last year on July 19, and I've been celebrating it for the past year," Johnson said. "It was a difficult endeavor, but it was a growing experience and I value what I learned from it."

Ex-official charged with tax evasion

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

For the second time in three months, a former Romulus 34th District Court Administrator has been brought up on charges following an extensive audit and criminal investigation by State Attorney General Frank J. Kelley and Director of the Michigan State Police Col. Michael D. Robinson.

Charles E. Walls, who served as court administrator from 1969 to 1987, has been charged in Kelley's complaint with failing to report income he received from the court for bookkeeping services.

Kelley stated, "The under-reporting of income resulted in underpayment of Michigan income tax." Kelley is seeking restitution of more than $11,000 in Walls' unpaid taxes. Kelley reports Walls has pleaded guilty to one count of income tax evasion at Recorder's Court in Detroit.

The charge against Walls and the subsequent plea is a result of audits conducted by the state court administrator's office and the investigation into missing court funds.

The investigation revealed evidence that Walls had received money from the court made out to ABS (Ann's Business Service), a business operated by Walls and his now deceased wife.

Kelley explained that Walls was apparently performing bookkeeping services for the court, while he was employed as a court administrator and failed to report the income on his Michigan income tax returns.

He now faces maximum penalties of five years in prison and/or fines of $5,000.

This February Kelley also charged Wall's successor, Nancy Schuette, with three counts of embezzlement of court funds totalling more than $270,000, while she served as administrator from 1987 until 1993. She resigned after being suspended for six months. Those charges are still pending.

Kelley said "those who fail to report income on their tax forms are playing a losing game. When the omission is discovered the taxpayer ends up paying substantial fines, penalties and interest."

Millions awarded to widow

Canton Township Lt. William Lenaghan was among the many area residents relieved to hear Debra Dell'Orco had won a $10.4 million dollar settlement in connection with a fire that claimed the lives of her husband and six children. Although the money could not bring back the lives of loved ones, he said it would offer them some type of future.

Lenaghan remembered the night of Dec. 22, 1990 as one of the worst tragedies he has ever seen.

"It was probably the worst I've seen in 31 years," he said. "I know it'll be with me till I go."

The 911 call came in just before midnight, Lenaghan said, summoning between 10 and 15 firefighters from fire station one. Over the next hour, additional firefighters and police officers joined the scene at 43465 Proctor Road, east of Sheldon.

"I arrived with the second group of people," said the officer. "The fire at that point was coming out of both the kitchen and family room like a blast furnace."

Firefighters and police officers attempted to rescue occupants of the house, but were forced out because of the intense flames and amount of smoke.

"I was really impressed with the dedication of the firemen," said Lenaghan, "they went in despite the flames. Two firefighters came out of the house with their jackets burning, but they were unable to reach the children."

Dell'Orco and the couple's 6-year-old son were the only two who survived the fire. Jimmy and Kelly, the two eldest children, were not home at the time of the incident, but arrived while local authorities were on the scene.

"They were overcome with remorse," said the officer. "They knew there had been a loss of life, but they did not know."

Man faces first-degree murder charge in girlfriend's death

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A 34-year-old Taylor man, who was arrested by Westland police in the strangulation death of his 30-year-old girlfriend, was bound over to the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice in Detroit for trial.

Bret Thomas Greenleaf, who is being held without bond, was charged with first-degree murder after Westland police arrested him April 18 when the body of his live-in girlfriend Tammy Lynn Davis was found inside a 55-gallon drum in the bed of the defendant's pickup truck, Taylor police Commander Stan Cybert said.

Greenleaf was bound over following a preliminary examination in Taylor 23rd District Court on Wednesday before Judge Anthony Nicita.

Taylor police were informed of the possible homicide by a concrete business owner in Southgate who said his Taylor employee telephoned him at 6 a.m. asking if he could pick up his check because he had just killed his girlfriend and needed to leave town, Cybert said.

Westland police arrested Greenleaf at a friend's home located on the 34000 block of Caseville Court at 10:45 a.m., Cybert said. Westland police officer Mark Engstrom was first to arrive at the scene and was directed to the victim's body by Greenleaf's attorney Robert Meston.

"We had to remove a bag of concrete and garbage can lid from atop the barrel. The victim was crouched in a vertical fetal position," Engstrom said.

Homeowner John Helton, who has known the defendant for nine years, testified that he was awakened by his wife that morning and notified that Greenleaf was at the location. "He was standing in the living room. He said John, I did it ... I killed Tammy," Helton testified.

Greenleaf then proceeded to tell Helton that the body of his live-in girlfriend of 13 years was in the barrel.

"I went outside and saw the barrel. I looked inside and found Tammy slumped over. I went back in the house ... I got sick," Helton testified.

Helton testified that Greenleaf told him he had an argument with the victim and strangled her at the couple's home located on the 7100 block of Wilkie Street in Taylor earlier that morning.

Helton gave a statement to Taylor police concerning Greenleaf's confession. At one point, Helton testified, the defendant asked that Davis' body be removed from the barrel so she can rest comfortably on the bed of the truck.

"I choked my girlfriend. I tried to revive her. I want to die - without her I have nothing," Helton's statement read.

The defendant took a prescription drug overdose sometime Monday morning after the alleged murder, Cybert said.

"He said he loved her very much and just destroyed the best thing in his life," Helton testified.

Helton called Greenleaf's father and Meston, who had served as Helton's attorney 10 years prior.

"He arrived about five to 10 minutes before the police. Meston advised him to turn himself in," Helton said.

Meston telephoned police and in the presence of Helton, his wife and another individual Greenleaf also made confessions about the death to Meston, according to testimony.

Prosecuting attorney Maria Petito made a motion to disqualify Meston, who testified that he spoke with his client about the murder before police arrested him.

"He's a material witness. It might effect his ability to cross-examine a witness," Petito said.

However Judge Anthony Nicita didn't agree that he had the authority to remove Meston from the case.

"If the defense lawyer want to stick his neck out, it's his decision. It's between the lawyer and the bar association. I don't know that I can stop a retained lawyer from representing his client," Nicita said.

"I don't see how the court can stand by idly when the case could be overturned by the actions of defense council," Petito added.

However, Nicita replied, "This is not a trial. I can't remove him."

According to Lenaghan, the father was in the family room with two of the boys when the fire started. The mother was in the kitchen.

When the tree fell over causing the lights to ignite, the father attempted to get the tree out of the house, ultimately separating himself from one of the boys in the living room. The 6-year-old was told to go with his mother and wait outside while the father rescued the remaining children.

Martin, 38, died from smoke and soot inhalation while trying to rescue Bonnie, 11; Sara, 9; Katie, 8; twins Michael and Megan, 5; and Robert, 4.

Today, Dell'Orco spends her days helping her three surviving children deal with the accident and campaigning to establish a consumer hotline regarding Christmas tree lights.

A total of five companies including the light manufacturer, the distributor, the consumer testing agency whose safety seal appeared on the box of lights, the company which sold the lights and the manufacturer of the family's couch, which fueled the fire and emitted a toxic smoke, were found to be negligent and ordered to pay $10.4 million over the next several years.

Moms reveal joys, headaches of workplace to teens

Instead of waving "good-bye" to mom when she left for work Thursday morning, scores of western Wayne County youngsters accompanied their mothers to the workplace in observance of Take Our Daughters to Work Day (TODTWD).

Girls - and a few boys - between the ages of 9 and 15 received a first-hand look at their mothers' place of employment and learned the duties they perform daily on the job.

The mother-daughter teams were observed in area hospitals, clinics, courts, municipal buildings and in all types of businesses and professional offices.

Youngsters sat in their mothers' classrooms, worked with attorneys, aided city administrators, toured a community help center and watched beauticians create hair styles.

If there wasn't a working mother in the household, the YWCA of Inkster had an solution to the dilemma. The "Y" supplied a working woman to serve as a substitute parent for the day.

YWCA Program Director Mary Wooten rounded up a group of working women which included a bank manager, a newspaper

"I have a lot of work to do, and I'm happy to have someone to help me today. I also had a 'daughter' last year from the YWCA program. I think it's a good idea to let young people know what kind of jobs they can look forward to."

reporter and editor, judge, pharmacist, a beauty shop owner, hospital official, a Metro Airport tower controller aide, a FBI agent and a U.S. Marshal. Following a continental breakfast at the YWCA, 20 Inkster High School and Blanchette Middle School students spent the remainder of the day with their "moms."

FBI agent Marianne Booth participated in the YWCA-sponsored TODTWD program for the first time this year.

"It's a good opportunity for young women to find out about the types of jobs the FBI has for them. The need for women agents has grown, and this is a good step in providing information about opportunities in the bureau," said Booth.

Donna Jackson, who manages the NBD branch at Michigan and Inkster roads, said the TODTWD provides an opportunity for girls "to see that a woman can run a branch as well as work as a teller."

"I have a lot of work to do, and I'm happy to have someone to help me today," said Theodora Rozier of the Inkster Housing Commission. "I also had a 'daughter' last year from the YWCA program. I think it's a good idea to let young people know what kind of jobs they can look forward to."

She was named dean of the WCCC Western Center recently when the former dean resigned.

Although the task of implementing new programs at the college is a time-consuming one, Johnson assured the young woman that she will keep in touch with her.

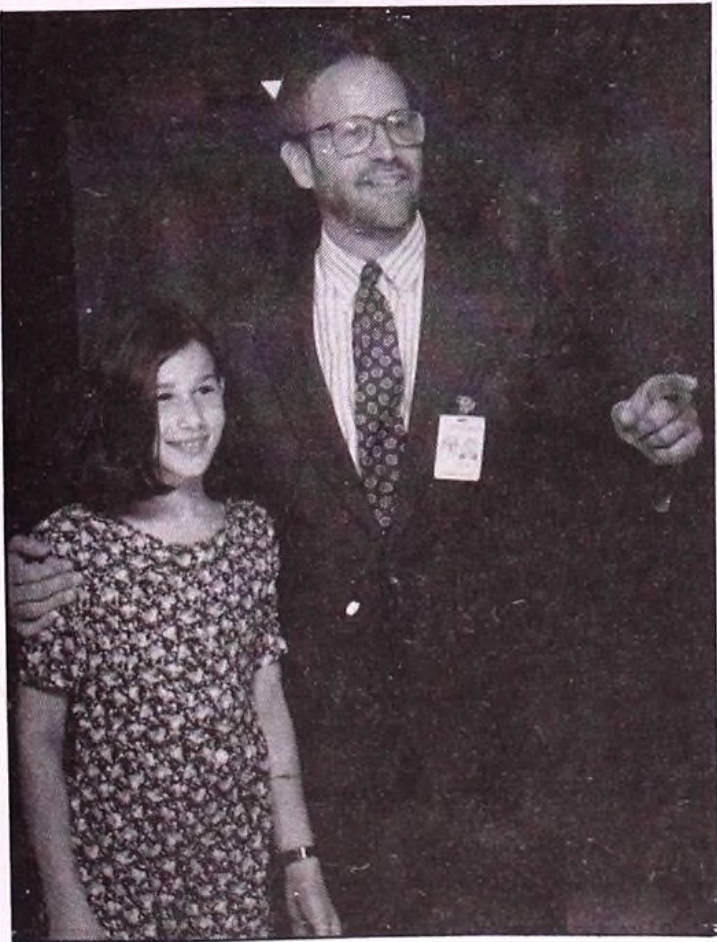

"If you follow my advice, and your grades improve, I'll give you $10 at the end of the term," she promised.

Leah Houltz, who spent the day with the Associated Newspapers news editor, was one of 20 young women who were paired with career women by the YWCA of Inkster.

100 acts of sex abuse charged

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A 33-year-old Westland man, charged with sexually assaulting his step-daughter and niece, was bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court for trial after waiving his preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court Thursday.

Scott Alan Falkiewicz was charged with four counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct (CSC) and one count of second-degree CSC against his 11-year-old niece, who claims to have been assaulted from September 1992 to April 1994 at the family home on the 100 block of Vanilla Street, according to Westland police Sgt. Michael Terry said.

After the niece spoke out about the assaults, the defendant's 10-year-old step-daughter reported that she had also been sexually abused on at least two separate dates between August and December 1993. Falkiewicz was charged with four counts of first-degree CSC for the alleged assaults against his pre-teen step-daughter.

Falkiewicz was released after posting bond and is required to have no contact with the complainants as a condition of that bond.

According to Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore, Falkiewicz also has complaints filed against him in Dearborn and Northville for alleged CSC with his step-daughter.

The Dearborn complaint stems from alleged assaults committed at his family-owned business, Suburban Floors, located at 24522 Michigan Ave. in Dearborn, Moore said. The second complaint arises from accusations that he sexually abused his step-daughter at a Northville doctor's office which he cleaned on Sundays, the officer added.

Moore said she wanted to warn parents not to take their children to his place of business.

"This guy can't be trusted. He committed over a 100 acts over a period of two years," Moore said.

These acts, the officer said, included sodomy and oral sex with the two young girls.

The defendant and his wife had a total of five children in their home, including four girls and a boy.

"We removed all five children. The 12-month-old only weighed 11 pounds," Moore said.

Holidays prompt group outings

In a time of nightmare neighbors, Thomas Parrelly of Canton Township is thrilled to live next to a hard-working, outgoing, family man.

Parrelly holds his neighbor in such high regard that he nominated Harry Meisner as the Associated Newspapers "neighbor of the year."

"There are many facets to Harry's neighborly charm," Parrelly stated in his letter. Meisner is a law enforcement official for the City of Westland which means he "genuinely cares for people, helps out whenever needed and always does the right thing. It's his job!"

Yet, he continues with the same outlook when he removes the uniform, said Parrelly.

"Every Christmas, Harry organizes a 'Tree Chopping Excursion' for the neighborhood," said Parrelly. "He plans every aspect of the day from the morning breakfast together to hot cider at the farm, and he'll even haul your tree home in the back of his truck for you."

Several months later, Meisner encourages the neighborhood to share in the festivities of Independence Day.

"On the fourth of July, he organizes yet another adventure,

Thomas Parrelly, (left), doesn't hesitate to ask his Canton Township neighbor Harry Meisner for help fixing his reluctant lawn mower, even if he did just arrive home from his job with the Westland Police Department. That's what neighbors are for, and one of the reasons Parrelly nominated Meisner as one of the special neighbors being saluted this week by Associated Newspapers. ANP photo by Kimberly Woloskie the 'Westland Fireworks Show.' He uses his clout as a city employee to secure a great spot in the parking lot, where everyone who piles into his truck can enjoy a great evening," said Parrelly.

In addition to organizing holiday events, Meisner instituted a Neighborhood Watch and offers to help with home improvements.

"Harry assists me in all my home improvements," said the nominating neighbor. "He networks to find the right people to spruce up his place, such as landscaping and central air conditioning. I look out my window, like what I see, ask him who did it and he gives me the number. I never have to look in the Yellow Pages as long as I live across the street from Harry, and he never complains."

For his interest in helping surrounding citizens, while caring for his own family, the Associated Newspapers named Harry Meisner the best neighbor in Canton Township.

Seniors receive special neighbor service

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Everyone should have a neighbor like Murray Barnes. If they did, the world would be a much better place for all of us.

During the winter months, the 50-year-old Inkster resident and construction worker gets out his snow shovel and removes the snow from the driveways, sidewalks and porches of his neighbors and, during the summer months, he hops on his lawnmower and cuts the grass, takes time to trim the shrubs and helps with minor repairs for those who need it.

"I know he's going to be very surprised over all of this because he does things without expecting any rewards."

Theola Jones

"I don't think anyone could find a better neighbor," writes Theola Jones, who nominated Barnes for the Good Neighbor award.

"We can call him any time of the day or night if we have a problem and Mr. Barnes will show up and help," Jones said. "When we go on vacation, he keeps a watchful eye on our homes and property. He is a young man who respects, and who cares for and who helps his neighbors. We can all learn from him."

Barnes, who has lived in the southeast section of the city on Spruce Street since he was two, is a source of support for the senior citizens in the neighborhood.

If they need him, he is there. Barnes and his wife, Lois, have four grown children. She said her husband is a "rather shy person" but she isn't surprised at the flattering comments about her husband.

"He is a very caring person and will do just about anything for a person," she added. "I know he's going to be very surprised over all of this because he does things without expecting any rewards."

"He's like that."

Neighborhood friendship continues

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

For the past seven years, Dan and Deanna Higgs of Wayne have been the most "priceless neighbors" anyone could ever hope for, Sharon Sagins wrote the Associated Newspapers.

"My children are all grown, so neighbors do not need to watch them after school," Sagins wrote, "nor do I have to worry when the iron is left on since my husband is retired."

Sagins then stressed however "but I do wish to thank these wonderful neighbors for the last couple of years since my husband has developed a heart problem. Without asking they have taken over the lawn mowing and caring of our yard in the summer and the snowblowing of our driveway and sidewalks in the winter."

"They also take over on a moments notice the responsibility of watching our dog, when my husband Al is in the hospital," Sagins continued.

"At one critical time they

even watched Keisha, our toy poodle, for three weeks, while my husband was having emergency surgery out of state," Sagins wrote.

Another reason we consider them the greatest of neighbors, Sagins wrote, "is because they are always checking on us to see if we need anything or to just find out how we are doing."

In conclusion, Sagins said, "these neighbors are really priceless and I certainly would like them recognized for being such special people."

When informed of her nomination last Thursday, Deanna Higgs said she was warmed by her neighbors' feelings, but feels simply that "what we do for the Sagins is just what we think being neighbors is all about."

While in some communities many neighbors do not even know each others names, "I have known the Sagins for many years as I grew up in this house. My husband and I moved back here with my mother seven years ago and that friendship with them was renewed," Higgs said.

"I'm home most of the day with my children, so many of my neighbors ask me for reports on what has gone on in the area during the day. And since we are a close neighborhood, we ask others to keep an eye open for our property when we are not around also," she said.

"I just can't speak highly enough of her or her husband. They're just wonderful people."

Hilda Scott

"If anyone's in need, they're the first ones to do it," Scott said.

The couple even allows all their neighbor's children to swim in their in-ground pool with adult supervision, she said.

Neighbors for the past 20 years, Scott and her husband Denis, both 75, have been assisted by the Schmitts whenever help is needed.

They shovel snow off the walkways and driveways in the winter and watch out for the elderly couple's safety.

"... if our bedroom shade at our window is not up at the usual time, Audrey is at our house," Scott wrote in her letter recommending the Schmitts for best neighbors.

When Denis Scott had a broken leg and needed to get to the hospital, Audrey Schmitt helped get him into the car. The Schmitts have even cared for the couple's dog when they were away, rather than have the dog placed in a kennel.

"She (Audrey) has been, not a neighbor, but a guardian angel - even to our English bulldog, Mugsie," the letter stated.

"I just can't speak highly enough of her or her husband. They're just wonderful people," Scott said.

Good neighbors Communities prosper with people helping people

Being a good neighbor is not an "old-fashioned" quality from the past. Each day, good neighbors in western Wayne County reach out to help the elderly, the ill and others who need a helping hand.

Their kind deeds and good works are performed without expectations of compensation, honors or recognition. For these good neighbors, the satisfaction of helping someone in need is the reward they reap from their efforts.

Good neighbors are the building blocks of our communities and the adhesive that holds our society together. By treating others as they would have others treat them, they have enhanced and improved the quality of life in the communities where they reside and inspired others also to become good neighbors.

We especially honor these good neighbors: Murray Barnes of Inkster, who assists elderly neighbors with chores; Audrey and Raymond Schmitt of Westland, who look after their 75-year-old neighbors; Dan and Deanna Higgs of Wayne, who have aided their neighbors in time of illness; Harry Meisner of Canton Township, who organizes neighborhood activities and promotes home safety, and Dan and Helen Eaton who take care of their neighbor's property when they are out of town.

In addition, the following good neighbors merit recognition: Canton Township residents Brian Carroll, Bob Seibert and Mike Rossman; Westland residents Malcolm and Sue MacKay; Willie Thomas, 12, of Inkster; Walter Eggers, Eugene and Denise Gabany and the Brock, Hawe and Maniez families of Wayne.

'Priceless' neighbors are dog's best friend

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Audrey and Ray Schmitt of Westland are everything good neighbors should be -- kind, courteous and helpful, but not intrusive, according to Westland resident Hilda Scott.

Selected as top good neighbors for Westland, the Schmitts have been helpful not only to their next door neighbor Scott and her husband, but all neighbors in their area who need a helping hand, according to Scott.

Students protest alumni presence at graduation

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It wasn't a question of building bridges between generations, but rather sharing a special moment in time.

It wasn't a question, either, of disrespect toward those who helped build Inkster High's tradition or any protest against authority.

But, some 90 petition-signing members of the graduating class of 1994 at Inkster High, wanted "their day to be their day."

"And, we felt that we shouldn't have to share it with the alumni," said Jacquelyn Long, one of the two senior spokespersons.

What stirred the caldron of controversy that boiled into a full-blown senior protest was the Inkster Board of Education members' invitation to the Classes of 1943 and 1944 to share their Golden Anniversaries with the Class of 1994. A joint-program to honor the three classes would be staged at the high school next month.

Once the word of the board action got around to the graduating seniors, they balked.

Jacquelyn Long

The snubbed seniors felt the board acted on an important event in their lives without consulting them, Long said.

"They didn't even ask us how we felt about this," said Tangela Gaines. "How would you have felt?"

Lorenzo A. Moner, school board president, pointed out that the board acted on the item because "they felt it was something special - something special for both generations."

The seniors agreed that it was a special occasion, and were willing to share the experiences - but on different days and nights.

The seniors told the administration that they wanted the memories they shared over the past four years to be theirs, and they look upon the administration's invitation as an act of intrusion on what was "their day".

Furthermore, the seniors approached the media, the mayor of the city of Inkster, Edward Bivens Jr., and a host of faculty members to help argue their point.

They have apparently have made their point.

On Wednesday, the school board caved in and announced that the Class of 1994 will not have to share the limelight with the Class of 1944.

"They have informed us that the members of the Class of 1994 have decided to celebrate their Golden Anniversary on another day," said Long. "I just hope people will realize that we didn't do this out of spite or anything. The kids feel that we have worked hard for this day. We want it to be ours. Is that asking for too much?"

"And most of us are willing to help organize a day of recognition for them. But we just don't feel it should be on the same day that we are scheduled to graduate."

Moner said that it was unfor-fortunate that an invitation extended to alumni who "are very special people, many of whom still live in the city and area, was misinterpreted by the graduating seniors."

"I guess they will never realize the feelings they touched until they are placed in the same situation. I would give anything to be around here in the year 2044. Wouldn't it be interesting to see how this graduating class would react if the class of 2044 said the same thing?"

"Maybe the board could place all that has been written on this subject in a time capsule and leave it for those students of 2044. Wouldn't that be something."

Ice cream store robbed for third time

Westland police officers are investigating the third recent robbery of the Baskin Robbins ice cream store, located at 8280 Merriman Road in Westland, believed to be committed by the same individual, according to Westland police Sgt. Donald Haigh.

A single white female cashier at the store was confronted by the robber around 10:25 p.m. April 21. The perpetrator walked through the front entrance of the store and approached the cashier, holding a silver handgun pointed at the ceiling, police reports said.

The assailant demanded the woman open the register and reached into the cash drawer taking $170 in cash, police said. The robber said, "Have a nice day," and walked out the front door headed in an unknown direction.

The suspect is described as a 5-foot, 9-inch tall white male, weighing approximately 160 pounds with a blonde mustache, wearing a dark blue ski mask and blue sweat jacket with a stripe across the chest.

Friends called 'priceless as pearls'

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER

Peggy Breen of Martinsville Road in Van Buren Township describes her neighbors, Dan and Helen Eaton, as "priceless as perfect pearls," but they modestly say that they only do what any good neighbor would do.

In her letter nominating the Eatons for the best neighbors' award, Breen said, "Our neighbors, Dan and Helen Eaton, happen to be the world's best neighbors."

"They are always watching out for us, and are always there for us when we need them," Breen said. "Whenever I'm baking and run out of something, Helen is always

"They are very pleasant people and would do anything for you. They are indeed the best neighbors," Breen said.

The Eatons, who have lived in their present home for 39 years, feel that the Breens are "almost family."

"They are such nice people that it is a pleasure to do things for them. Still, we don't do anything different than any good neighbor," Helen Eaton said.

Breen said that when her family is away, Dan Eaton shovels their walk and driveway so that it is nice and clean when they arrive home.

The Long And Short Of Making More On Your Money, Whatever Your Economic Outlook.

Rising Rate CD For The Long Term.

FirstRate Fund For The Short Term.

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do.

So First of America has two shrewd ways for you to earn a great rate. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term deposit and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.SM

It starts at 3.50% APY. And you'll end up earning 6.00% APY for the final term.* You can withdraw part or all of your money in the first ten days after every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $1000 deposit. Plus, you can get a no service charge personal checking account.

The short view.

If you predict rates will keep going up this year, invest short term with the FirstRate Fund.SM The APY is based on the 91-day

Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it. A new deposit of $10,000 is required. It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times. Plus you can get a no service charge personal checking account.

Of course, your deposits are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor. Call 1-800-443-5465 or visit any of the 150 offices in Southeast Michigan.

Because no matter what your point of view, you can't go wrong investing with us.

Drive safely Motorists advised to 'play it safe'

Concern for the security of travelers has prompted AAA Michigan to offer Playing it Safe, a free six-page brochure on travel safety.

"Crime is a fact of life throughout the world and travelers are not immune," said Jerry Basch, AAA community safety services manager. "While few people are confronted by safety problems on a trip, those who prepare wisely can help ensure a worry-free and enjoyable vacation."

Basch cited two key factors in successful trip planning: Make sure that your vehicle is in top operating condition, and thoroughly plan your route in advance.

Other travel security tips are:

- Keep your car doors locked and the windows up.
- Drive on well-traveled roads or streets.
- Avoid high-crime areas.
- Travel during daytime hours.
- Use well-lighted convenience stores, gas stations or other establishments frequented by the public.
- Use a cellular phone, if possible, for emergency calls.

If your vehicle is struck deliberately, stay inside and lock the doors if you have not already done so. Don't get out to inspect damages. Instead, motion to the other driver to follow you and then drive into a well-lighted public area and contact the police. If you have a cellular phone, dial "911" or "0" and request police assistance.

"In most cases, common sense is a very valuable tool when seeking to avoid potentially dangerous situations," Basch said. "We urge all travelers - even those familiar with their surroundings - to play it safe and take necessary precautions."

The free brochure is available at any of the full-service branches and AAA Travel Agency offices, or by calling 336-1500.

North Brothers Ford honored

North Brothers Ford, Inc. of Westland, has been awarded the Ford Motor Company highest dealer honor, The QC Chairman's Award for 1993. This most celebrated award is the ultimate recognition of customer satisfaction excellence. The dealership was also recognized with five Gold Awards in the Medallion Program resulting from outstanding customer service.

Presented to a very select group of Ford, Lincoln-Mercury dealers annually, The chairman's award recognizes those who excel in meeting and exceeding the needs and expectations of their customers. The award is determined by rankings in surveys completed by customers. Distributed nationwide, The chairman's award is given to the top qualifying dealer in each regional group and is a distinguished achievement for quality recognition.

"In the years we have served the people of this territory, we have made thousands of friends."

Raymond and Ernest North originally opened in 1936 selling Chrysler products, but then switched to Ford. In 1969 the company moved to the present location on Ford Road in Westland. Continuing in the family tradition, James E. North, president (Raymond's son) and sons Douglas North, vice-president/general manager and Thomas North, general sales manager, continue to own and operate the dealership.

The North family attributes the award to great employees who still follow the founder's philosophy:

"In the years we have served the people of this territory, we have made thousands of friends. We have done this by rendering to our customers a competent, efficient service at all times and by fair and honest dealing. We'll give you the kind of service you expect!"

Raymond North - 1936

Douglas North will attend a meeting in late April with other chairman's award recipients. The festivities will conclude with a presentation ceremony by Ford Chairman Alex Trotman during an official dinner.

Super 'star' Photographer trains his lens on 'natural' beauty

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Robert Pfeiffer, owner and operator of the Wedding Star Studio of Dearborn, specializes in wedding video photography. In the past 30 years Pfeiffer has photographed and videotaped more than 7,000 weddings.

Having spent considerable time in both the states of Hawaii and Florida, Pfeiffer said he has become a great lover of outdoor photography and most of his wedding videos are tied in with some natural beauty, such as the waterfall in Dearborn or Heritage Park in Taylor.

Pfeiffer is offering 11 wedding photo packages starting at $495 and three high school senior portrait packages for $115, $195 and $295.

"We have a unique collection of high school portraits for graduates down through the years," he said, "we have had graduates pose with their boy or girl friend, their cars or motorcycles, a family member or even a pet."

"We have vowed for 30 years," Pfeiffer said, "that we would never set limits on ourselves or our photos/videos."

For Associated Newspaper VIP card holders, Wedding Star Studio is offering several specials. "Included in our wedding specials is a $575 value gift including two 11x14 and one 20x24 inch canvas photos. We also offer a 10 percent discount for senior class photos. Call our office (565-8448) for further details,"

he said.

"While we prefer advance notice on wedding assignments," Pfeiffer said, "we are also known for taking many last minute wedding assignments."

"Originally, I wrote books, songs and other materials," he said, "and photography was a sideline. But after spending time in Hawaii and Florida, I found photography also had a great deal of appeal, particularly photos and videos that capture the beauty of creation. Today half my sales are of outdoor activities."

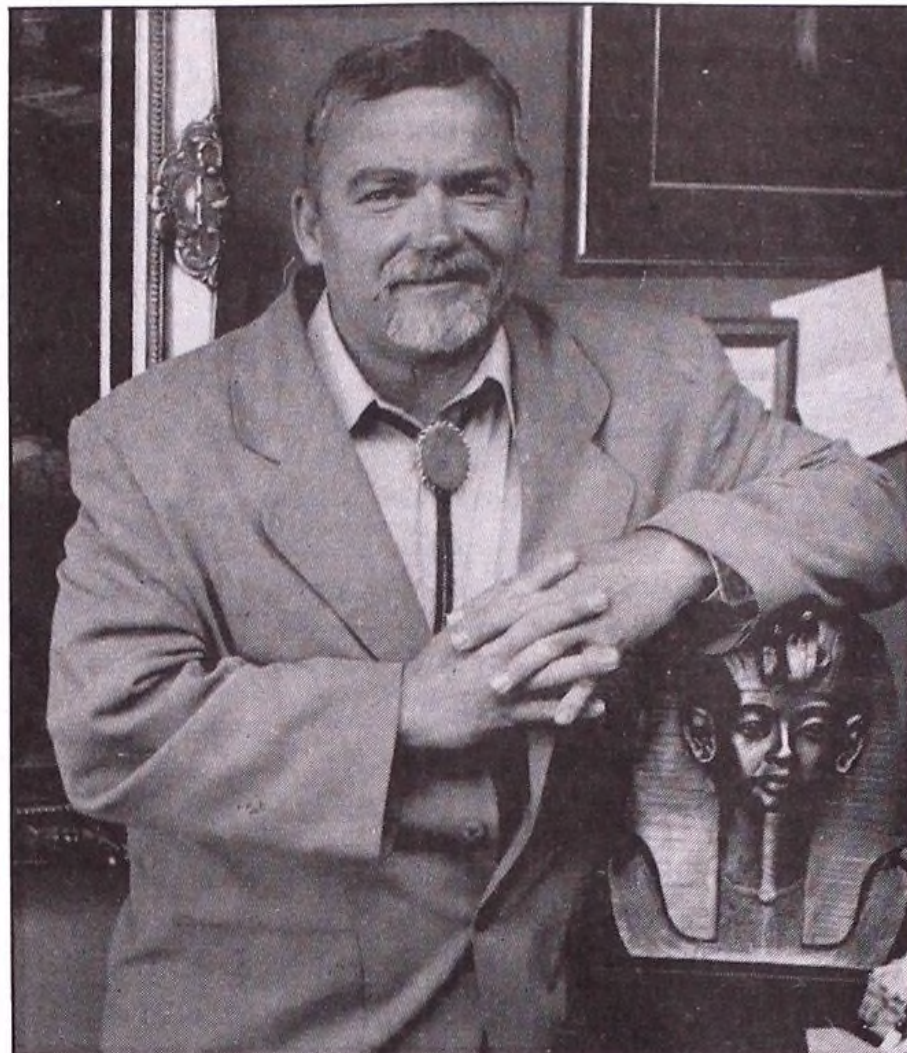

Pfeiffer also created one of the first modern wrestling movies in the U.S. entitled Ringside. "The two-hour movie later was purchased from us and renamed I Like to Hurt People and was carried by Blockbuster Video Stores," he said.

"Today I am looking for beautiful women models who will appear on a calendar coinciding with our 'Posedown' music video."

"The models will be dressed in bathing suits, leotards or other exercise gear," Pfeiffer said. The only qualifications the models must meet is that they be "single and utterly beautiful."

Wedding Star Studio is located at 24730 Michigan Ave., Dearborn. The studio is open from noon to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

Further information can be obtained by calling Wedding Star Studio at 565-8448.

Robert Pfeiffer, owner of Wedding Star Studios, has more than 30 years experience photographing weddings, portraits and nature. He specializes in finding natural settings for special wedding photos and is presently offering several special discount packages for VIP card holders. ANP photo by Jim McGill

Tanning salon provides kiss of the sun

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

Can't wait for spring? Anxious for a bit of summer sun? Want the sun-kissed look of those who spent the dismal weeks of winter in a tropical climate?

Romulus Tanning Salon has the answer. The facility is helping area residents get a jump on the summer season with a package deal on tanning and tanning supplies. For a limited time, VIP card holders can receive a 10-percent discount on lotions and tanning packages, using either beds or booths.

Operating successfully for more than six years at 36640 Goddard Road in downtown Romulus, owner Lindsay Brugger caters to clients from 9 a.m. until midnight Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Fridays. The salon is open from 9 a.m. until 8 in the evening on Saturdays and from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays.

"They'd be coming in here past midnight if I let them,"

People realize we're here and they know about the products we offer, but more than that we focus on honesty and service.

-Lindsay Brugger

said the owner. "Business has been excellent. Establishing a business in the beginning is difficult, but we have done really well."

Brugger believes honesty and service have been the secrets of her success.

"People realize we're here and they know about the products we offer, but more than that we focus on honesty and service," she said. "I always change the bulbs when they need to be changed and keep the salon clean and comfortable."

"People come here because of my personality and (the way) people are treated," she continued. "We try to accommodate."

Before clients are led to the tanning rooms, Brugger or one of two other employees discuss skin conditions with the customer.

"We try to determine their skin type before deciding how long clients should stay under the lights," said Brugger. "I want to make sure you get the best tan and keep the skin moist, too. Overexposure can be very uncomfortable."

To accomplish these goals, Romulus Tanning Salon carries a variety of products that used together accelerate the tanning process, and also moisturize the skin.

"We let clients use indoor tanning lotions," said Brugger. "We sell a tanning gel, that when used with the shower gel, helps keep a tan longer and keeps the skin moist. Regular soap can strip the skin of moisture."

Romulus Tanning Salon also offers nail services including manicures and acrylics.

Wayne County mirrors President's job training vision

Job training issues are now in the spotlight as a result of the proposed Re-employment Act of 1994 which will revamp the national unemployment system.

Locally, Wayne County has taken a proactive approach to job training with the establishment of The Highland Park Job Center, the first state "One-Stop-Career Center."

The Highland Park Job Center combines the three major agencies that deal with putting people to work, from welfare departments to employment counselors for job seekers.

The Wayne County Job Connection, The Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) and the Department of Social Services work together to provide a unique mix of services all available under one roof, making it easier for the unemployed to get the job training, job placement assistance and the supportive services they need.

"This is a state-of-the-art job training facility," said Wayne

County Executive Edward McNamara. "It is where the future of job training is headed. Its uniqueness lies in the fact that for the first time, three service agencies like this are in one central location, which eliminates the runaround associated with social service agencies and job training offices."

"Combating unemployment is not an easy task, but when three agencies like this can work together, the results can be outstanding."

At The Highland Park Job Center, The Wayne County Job

Connection provides services to upgrade skills of people who may have never worked before or may be working toward becoming re-employed in a new career.

MESC provides labor exchange information and unemployment services. The Department of Social Services works with those on welfare and provides services that coordinate with customers' goals of getting back to work, such as transportation and child care.

"This represents a partnership for people," said Kathleen Alessandro, executive director of the Wayne County Job Connection. "We have begun to rethink how we do business, and with the opening of this state-of-the-art career center, we have to put people first."

The Highland Park Job Center assists the hard-to-serve population of Highland Park and Hamtramck, providing job training and job placement assistance. The services provided are free to those who qualify and include basic remediation, skills development, computer experience, and job search skills.

The Highland Park Job Center is located at 16480 Woodward. It is open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. For information regarding services call 865-0200. The Wayne County Job Connection also has a Dislocated Worker Assistance Office in Livonia (261-3420) and a Westside office in Dearborn (274-3700).
